Congressional unit to rule whether Nixon owes taxes

Bi-partisan tax judges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Nixon's taxes opened to public scrutiny, a joint congressional committee and a California tax board this week take up the legal question of whether the President owes up to $300,000 in back taxes and interest.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., will head the investigation into two controversial aspects of the President's tax returns made public Saturday by convening the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Taxation. A committee staffer predicted the first meeting would be held as early as possible this week although other matters may delay it until Wednesday.

The California Franchise Tax Board Tuesday will include the question of Nixon's tax status in California on the agenda for its regular meeting in Sacramento.

White House sources said if the two hearings go against the President it was possible Nixon might have to pay $296,333 in federal taxes and between $15,000 and $16,000 in California taxes.

Nixon examines national health insurance proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon examined Sunday proposals for a national health insurance plan that would pay most medical bills over $150 a year and all of the costs beyond $1,500.

Presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren said Nixon worked on energy problems and the health plan in both the Oval Office and his private hideaway in the Executive Office building. He is scheduled to discuss the program today with Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

HEW's original proposals — still subject to review by the White House — involve a program to begin in 1975 that would cover doctor bills, hospital costs, prescription drugs, family planning, dental care for young children and a variety of other services.

A family would have to pay only $150 per year for health care, HEW officials said. If the medical bills are higher, they would pay 25 per cent of the cost, with the rest borne by the government insurance program, up to a $1,500 per year limit. They would not have to pay anything above that figure. The plan, according to HEW, would mean that a serious, prolonged or expensive illness would not be economically catastrophic.

The program would be short of nationalized medicine since private companies, not the government, would administer it and be a significant part of the HEW proposal. The government would spend about $4 billion a year with employer and employee benefits making up the rest, which would be most of the cost.

among traffic officers as to the effect of energy saving measures on the number of traffic fatalities.

Ohio, for example, counted seven traffic fatalities Nov. 4 and three last Sunday. "I think it was an indication that the reduction in nonessential driving and the reduction in speed was partly a factor in reduced fatalities, although we need to test it over a more extended period of time," said Frank J. Ryan of the Ohio Highway Safety Department. "We are going to be watching on future Sundays."

But in Oregon, where no highway fatalities were reported either Sunday, a Motor Vehicles Division spokesman said the figures "don't prove a cotton pickin' thing." He said, "fatalities can go up and down for totally unexplainable reasons."

Illinois State Police Superintendent Dwight

and he is now a millionaire.

Nixon pledged that if the tax committee rules against him on the amount he wrote off for the archives gift and the San Clemente property sale, he will pay up.

Mills is head of the committee which comprises five representatives and five senators. Six of the group are Democrats and four Republicans.

Nixon secluded himself in the White House Sunday, apparently satisfied that he had explained all.

The President insisted that everything he did was legal but others questioned the transaction.

Ira Tannenbaum, director of a public interest group that first questioned whether Nixon's tax deduction on the papers gift was legal, said Sunday it still was not clear whether the transfer was made before the legal cutoff date, July 25, 1969.

Nixon, in making "full disclosure" of his personal income and taxes, conceded Saturday that "questions and controversies may continue as a consequence" of the unprecedented release of the statistics.

The Nixon financial statement also revealed: —The President over a four-year period spent only $63,029 of his $286,000 expense allowance over that period and took the rest as personal income.

—Borrowed heavily from friends and $25,000 from his elder daughter, Tricia Cox, to buy property at Key Biscayne, Fla. Mrs. Cox made a $111,270 profit on the transaction over five years.

—The government spent $6 million to construct and maintain the Western White House office complex on adjacent government property, $635,000 on the San Clemente grounds for security purposes and $688,000 on the home itself for security-related reasons.

—San Clemente will be given to the government after death of Nixon and his wife.

E. Pitman said, "It's too early to tell if the speed reduction is having an effect upon traffic fatalities. There are a number of other factors involved, like weather and road conditions, and in such a short term it is awfully hard to draw any connection."

In Kansas, Highway Patrol Maj. Jim Martin said the fuel shortage will probably reduce highway deaths and "that's one of the good by-products of this whole situation."

But Kansas Highway Patrol Superintendent William Abbott said he is worried there will be more accidents because of slow and fast cars mixing on highways where lower speed limits are not mandatory.

"We in law enforcement found out a long time ago that the safest situation on the road is when everyone is driving at the same speed, regardless of what that speed is," Abbott said.

IRS probes fuel price gouging at truck stops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an attempt to throttle a threatened work stoppage by disgruntled truckers, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) agents across the nation Sunday were preparing to investigate complaints of fuel price gouging at truck stops.

"I faithfully promise that we will promptly take action against all those who are exploiting the current fuel shortages," William E. Simon, head of the Federal Energy Administration, promised the truckers.

Simon made his promise after a meeting Saturday with IRS Commissioner Donald Alexander, who ordered teams of IRS agents to check all truck stops where there are complaints from truckers and make spot checks at other locations. The IRS enforces price controls from the Cost of Living Council.

The decision followed a series of meetings in Washington between government officials and representatives of the truckers, who complained that they were being unfairly hurt by high fuel prices and lower speed limits prompted by the energy crisis.

"I am also asking the cooperation of the trucking industry and the drivers themselves to help us identify those fuel suppliers who raised prices illegally," Simon said. "We need the truckers' cooperation to solve the problem."

He suggested that truckers use their citizens' ban radios to notify dispatchers of illegal prices, and dispatchers to call the closest IRS office immediately so agents can investigate immediately.

An IRS spokesman said Sunday he could not estimate how many agents would be patrolling the highways, but said "that come Monday morning I expect they will be out in force."

Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the Teamsters Union, met with President Nixon Saturday at the White House on the truckers' requests for stricter controls on diesel fuel costs and a return to a 60 m.p.h. speed limit on interstate highways instead of the 55 m.p.h. truck limit that Nixon has proposed to conserve fuel. The union leader also conferred with Simon for nearly two hours.

Fitzsimmons urged both union and non-union drivers to abandon any plans for more road blockades or work stoppages while the government tries to solve their complaints. "I do not condone blockades or nationwide strikes," he said.

But the top level meetings apparently failed to impress a dissident group of independent truckers, who planned a work stoppage Thursday and Friday. The organizers predicted would involve 100,000 drivers.

The Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers (FASH) in Pittsburgh called for a nationwide truck shutdown Thursday and Friday to protest difficulties in obtaining sufficient fuel. There was no mention of blockading highways.

Mike Parkhurst, editor of an industry publication, "Overdrive," said at a news conference on the steps of the Capitol Saturday that "neither Frank Fitzsimmons nor President Nixon has the influence or the powers or the respect to stop the shutdown."

Air will get dirtier as EPA eases U.S. pollution laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russell Train, head of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), said Sunday he expects his agency will approve almost every request it receives this winter for permission to burn dirtier fuels in violation of the clean air health laws.

He warned Americans to expect dirtier air in some sections of the country because of the energy crisis; but he said he hoped the effects would only be temporary.

Train also said he would favor government action to force Detroit to build cars that use less gasoline and he continued to disagree with the White House proposal that car exhaust standards be further weakened.

Asked during a UPI "Washington Window" interview what the energy crisis might do to efforts to clean up the air, Train said: "I think the frank prognosis would be that in some of our cities, particularly on the East Coast, New England, there is going to be some dirtier air for a short period of time."

"I think that the shortage of low sulphur fuels is very real (and) we have a very difficult situation to get through. And I have no doubt that on a case-by-case basis, carefully weighing environmental and energy requirements, in each case we are going to have to grant permission to burn some dirtier fuel."

Current air health laws require industry, particularly power plants, to burn fuels, such as low sulfur coal and oil, which will not spew hazardous substances into the air. The fuel shortage, however, is forcing some firms to switch to dirtier high-sulfur fuel, a change requiring state and EPA approval.

"Air is not going to generally get worse, but in some metropolitan areas, particularly in the East, there will be, this winter, some dirtier fuel burned," Train said.

He admitted there is "a certain amount of panic at the present with respect to energy and the environmental issue, but like most panics I think reason will be re-established and balance will be reestablished...I do not think that we should sacrifice our environmental goals for energy reasons."

Asked if he favored a law that would force Detroit to build cars with small engines, Train said he would prefer mandatory standards requiring engines that get many miles out of a gallon of gas.

Shapp to announce today candidacy for second term

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Pennsylvania's 1974 politics go public today as Gov. Milton J. Shapp formally announces he is a candidate for reelection. Shapp, an independent Democrat who challenged the party organization for control, apparently wanted Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline to run with him for a second term.

GOP leader, Shapp have much in common

PAOLI, Pa. (UPI) — The frontrunner for the Republican nomination for governor has some things in common with Gov. Milton J. Shapp.

Andrew L. Lewis Jr. and Shapp both want to be inaugurated Pennsylvania governor in January, 1975. Both have business backgrounds. Both know about railroading in the state, hail from suburban Philadelphia and view themselves as progressive.

By now, every Pennsylvanian must know their Democratic governor wants another term. Politically aware residents know Drew Lewis is the best bet to be the man who challenges Shapp. Although the average citizen may not know him, Lewis is sure that is unimportant at this point.

"I'm unknown," he admits. "I haven't run for public office. But recognition will not be a factor in whether I'm elected governor. By election day 1974, Shapp, a millionaire whose personal fortune from cable television aided him in becoming governor, could be the first Pennsylvania chief executive to succeed himself in more than a century. Until recently, the state constitution forbade it.

Shapp's announcement at a suburban Harrisburg hotel was expected to include designations of his campaign office location and who will run his bid for a second term.

He could also call for an open primary to fill the nomination for lieutenant governor.

Shapp still is not sure, however, if his own primary bid will go unchallenged. Pittsburgh Mayor Peter F. Flaherty has been touted as a possible opponent, although he has said nothing.

The governor entered politics actively after his business fortune was secured and he had worked with the national administration of John F. Kennedy.

Shapp twice defeated Auditor General Robert P. Casey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Shapp lost the general election in 1966 to Republican Raymond Shafer, but beat Raymond Broderick in 1970.

The governor fought the railroad merger that created the Penn Central, has been an advocate of returning to coal as the nation's primary fuel and has keyed his administration to consumer issues.

Fiscally, a state income tax was enacted early in his administration and Shapp currently is deadlocked with legislative Republican leaders on how to return some of the revenue.

Kline, who said last week he had not made up his mind, apparently will join the governor on the ticket.

Fuel crisis predicted in 1952

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recommendations of government study commissions traditionally have been ignored. Things were no different in 1952 when the Paley Commission foresaw a fuel shortage and suggested ways to head it off.

The commission, appointed in 1951 by President Harry S. Truman to study possible shortages in all raw materials, said the nation one day would face a severe shortage of oil and natural gas.

Headed by William S. Paley, chairman of the Columbia Broadcasting System, the panel recommended that both industry and government develop alternate sources of liquid and gaseous fuels, principally from oil shale and coal.

The nation has enough oil shale and coal to last for centuries, the commission said, and it predicted that commercial production of synthetic oil from shale or coal could come in a decade or less.

But that projected date was a decade ago, and research so far has reached only the pilot plant stage.

Development of the oil shale industry and making coal into liquid and gaseous fuels appears to have lagged since 1952 because not enough money was put into research and development.

Fill 'er up here — for free

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — A gas station owner, ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to refund $1,200 in overcharges to motorists, said Sunday he'll give away 3,000 gallons of gasoline today instead.

"We're gonna open up at 7 a.m. and stay open until it's gone," said Russell N. Holbrook, owner of Uncle Russ' Shell station. "This way I get it out of the way in one day and I pay my debt."

He said customers would be limited to 10 gallons each. Holbrook said the IRS ordered the refunds after he boosted the price of high test gasoline in November at his station from 48.9 cents to 54.7 cents per gallon in violation of price ceilings.

Good Morning

A 20th wedding anniversary is difficult to celebrate. It's too soon to brag and too late to complain.

What's news

Lethal radium found

BEAUMONT, Tex. — Officers found a stolen truck carrying lethal radioactive material Sunday in a rice field west of Beaumont. Jefferson County authorities said the radium-192, which could kill a human within an hour after exposure, was intact in a locked box. "The material had not been tampered with," a sheriff's office spokesman said. "There was no apparent damage to the truck. The material was intact. The truck was checked out with a Geiger counter."

Military secret leak feared

NEW YORK — It wasn't the leak of the Pentagon Papers that caused the White House to set up the "plumbers group," but fear that Daniel Ellsberg might tell Russia which of its cities the United States would attack in case of war, the New York Times said Sunday. Times reporter Seymour Hersh also said the White House sought to limit investigations of the plumbers' break-in at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist fearing they would compromise a Soviet secret police agent who was actually an FBI informer.

Liz Taylor, Burton reunite

LOS ANGELES — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton staged a dramatic reconciliation at the actress' hospital bedside Sunday. A few hours later, the handsome Welsh actor pushed his ailing wife in a wheelchair to a plane to take them to a sunny Christmas in Naples, Italy. "She's going to get a lot of rest and sunshine," Burton said as he gazed at his wife, who was wearing a reconciliation present — a heart-shaped diamond ring on her wedding finger. Miss Taylor was asked how she felt: "Not too well considering I've been in the hospital for two weeks," said the actress who was dressed in a flowing black gown with an orchid and purple design.

SBA power in jeopardy

WASHINGTON — The future of the Small Business Administration's loan-making authority apparently hinges on what its administrator tells a House subcommittee this week about alleged illegal activities within the agency. Thomas S. Kleppe, who has headed the SBA since January, 1971, takes the witness chair for the second time Monday — after nearly a week off to allow tempers to cool — to be questioned by members of the House Small Business subcommittee.

House considers trade bill

WASHINGTON — The House this week starts consideration of a trade bill that at best could aid Jews who want to leave the Soviet Union, but at worst could sour the U.S.-Soviet detente. After two months of delay caused by the White House, a landmark trade reform bill is scheduled for House action today and Tuesday. The bill gives the White House many trade negotiating powers, leaving Congress with the role of setting guidelines or vetoing presidential decisions. Although the major thrust of the bill is to give President Nixon a stronger bargaining hand in upcoming trade negotiations with the Europeans and Japanese, its main purpose largely has been submerged in the debate over whether it should be tied to Soviet emigration policy.

Israel ready to compromise

WASHINGTON — Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said in a television interview Sunday that Israel "will have to give in a little bit" in the December Mideast peace negotiations in Geneva. "We will have to compromise," said Dayan on CBS television's Issues and Answers program. "We don't have to keep all the territory," gained in the 1967 six-day war. Dayan refused, however to specify how much territory Israel was willing to give up: "We shouldn't set peace conditions here in Washington." At first, Dayan said the pre-1967 war boundaries might be compatible with Israeli's security if there were "fool proof guarantees" of peace. But he backed off immediately, saying: "It depends what kind of guarantees" and that "boundaries should be far away."

Woman, 6 children die in fire

CHICAGO — Fire broke out in a South Side apartment Sunday, killing a woman along with four of her children and two grandchildren. More than 20 residents of the building were evacuated, but the fire was confined to the third floor apartment of Mamie Brown. Fire officials said the victims apparently died from smoke inhalation.

New president elected

CARACAS — Venezuela chose a new president Sunday in the quietest elections since the overthrow of the Marcos Perez Jimenez dictatorship 15 years ago. Lorenzo Fernandez, 55, candidate of the ruling Social Christian party, and Carlos Andres Perez, 51, of Accion Democratica were co-favorites for the presidency among the original 13 candidates. Final results were not expected for at least 48 hours. Alejandro Gomez Silva, the candidate of Perez Jimenez' party, announced at midday he had dropped out of the race, leaving only 12 men running.

Leader's home demolished

BELFAST — A bomb early Sunday demolished a Belfast house owned by militant Protestant leader the Rev. Ian Paisley, capping another night of violence in Northern Ireland where gunfire left one man dead and six others wounded. In Britain, leaders from Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland huddled with their English counterparts outside of London for another round of talks on the future of the troubled province. They are reported ironing out final details for the creation of an historic "Council of Ireland," a bilateral body composed of representatives from both Irelands to deal with mutual problems.

Driving ban curbs crime

OSLO — Norwegian police reported a sharp drop in crime this weekend apparently as a result of the ban on Sunday driving. Norway was the ninth European country to take the fuel conservation measure because of the Arab oil squeeze. Restaurants and hotels reported business down and the effects were also being felt in Austria where there is no ban on weekend pleasure driving. Resort owners reported Austrian ski slopes were almost deserted despite heavy snowfalls as skiers from neighboring nations were unable to drive across the borders. One official said losses so far have not been too high because it was early in the season.

New ethics bill proposed

HARRISBURG — A Republican Senator is drafting an ethics bill that would require state employees with salaries over $10,000 to disclose all sources of income. Sen. Henry Rager's bill would also set up a special non-legislative watchdog committee to guard state government against crooked bureaucrats and unethical legislators. Rager, an attorney from Lycoming County, says his bill is a response to tough amendments put in the current Legislative Code of Ethics by the House. That bill is in the Senate State Government committee.

Ban ads ruled deceptive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission (FTC) judge ruled Sunday that Bristol-Myers Co. falsely advertised Dri Ban antiperspirant spray as "dry" when in reality it is wet, watery and runny.

The firm was ordered to stop using deceptive television commercial demonstrations for Ban and dozens of other products it turns out.

A spokesman for Ogilvy and Mather, Bristol-Myers' advertising agency, denied the FTC's findings that the ads were in any way deceptive and said the firm planned to appeal. "The commission's hearing examiner found 'no specific intent' on the part of either Bristol-Myers or Ogilvy and Mather to deceive the public," the agency said.

The complaint against Bristol-Myers singled out five TV commercials for "Dri Ban" which the company spent $5.8 million to air in 1969 and 1970.

Typical of the commercials was one showing two girls in an elevator who spray Dri Ban and a so-called "leading antiperspirant spray" on the lenses of a pair of eye glasses. The Ban lens looks dry and clear while the other lens is white and thick.

But Daniel H. Hanscom, an FTC law judge who heard both his agency's lawyers and those from Bristol-Myers argue the case, ruled that a video tape of Dri Ban being sprayed on the body or other surface shows the commercial was deceptive.

"This uncut and continuous portrayal clearly reveals...the wet, runny, liquid and watery nature of 'Dri Ban' when sprayed on the body or on a surface, as well as the plain and obvious residue deposited on the body or on a surface by such spraying."

'Council of Ireland' approved

SUNNINGDALE, England (UPI) — Britain, the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland announced Sunday that they have agreed on the formation of an historic "Council of Ireland."

The council is to be a bilateral unit, made up of representatives from both Irelands, to deal with mutual problems and to attempt to solve the violence between Catholic and Protestant extremists in Northern Ireland, which has already claimed more than 900 lives.

Details of the agreement would be announced later, a spokesman said.

In a communique issued at the end of more than 50 hours of talks between the British government led by Prime Minister Edward Heath, the Irish government headed by Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave and the Protestant-Roman Catholic coalition government of Northern Ireland headed by Brian Faulkner, the participants said a formal Anglo-Irish agreement would be signed and registered at the United Nations.

Stranded passengers have fun

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Parties were the order of the day Sunday for the 500 passengers aboard the luxury liner Federico C—stuck on a sandbar off the beach here.

But many of the 230 crew members were busy unloading fuel to lighten the 606-foot ship after tugboats failed for the third time to tug it free.

The Federico C hit the sandbar Saturday morning while returning from a seven-day cruise to San Juan, St. Thomas and Nassau.

The Port Everglades harbor-master's office said the ship strayed from the channel in heavy fog.

School curricula changes urged

NEW YORK (UPI) — A substantial percentage of teachers polled in a nationwide vote favored a change in school curricula to help head off another Watergate-type abuse of federal power.

The results of the balloting, which were released Sunday by the Scholastic Institute of Teacher Opinion (SITO), disclosed that 39.3 per cent of the teachers polled wanted a section on character and values included in every curriculum to prevent government corruption.

Holland, Portugal stay with U.S.

Kissinger thanks policy supporters

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met Sunday with the foreign ministers of Holland and Portugal to thank them for their support of the American stance during the Middle East war.

He urged Dutch Foreign Minister Max van der Stoep not to give in to Arab oil pressure and was said to have offered American support in helping Holland meet its energy needs. Holland, like the United States, has been hit with an Arab oil embargo over what is considered its pro-Israeli position.

Kissinger, here for a ministerial meeting of the Atlantic alliance, "expressed appreciation for the position the Dutch have taken" and urged them not to back down now, State Department spokesman George Vest told newsmen.

Vest was asked if Kissinger had been critical of the European Common Market statement of Nov. 6, generally thought to be pro-Arab, in his talks with van der Stoep. Vest recalled Kissinger had stated at that time "this particular approach is not helpful in an area where we are trying to get negotiations under way." It was a reference to the Middle East peace conference scheduled for mid-December.

Van der Stoep told newsmen that Kissinger had expressed "the readiness of the United States to help Holland in the oil situation, which we accept gladly." He said that American and Dutch officials would start a series of "contingency conversations" on the energy crisis in Holland today.

The Dutch foreign minister said that Kissinger "shared complete understanding for having a community solution to the oil crisis."

"We should have a joint policy," van der Stoep said.

Pullout can start oil flow

KUWAIT (UPI) — Arab oil producing states said in a communique Sunday that the moment Israel starts withdrawing from all Arab territory occupied in the 1967 war under a timetable guaranteed by the United States, the Arabs will lift their ban on oil shipments to the U.S.

At the same time, Kuwait oil ministry undersecretary Abdel Wahab Mohammed told newsmen that the additional five per cent production cut planned for European nations in January would be implemented unless the countries "provide concrete evidence of friendliness such as by showing that they are putting pressure on the United States or Israel."

The Arab oil producers had exempted all the European Common Market members, except Holland, from their scheduled five per cent December cutback as a gesture of appreciation for its Nov. 18 declaration supporting Arab demands for Israeli withdrawal.

In the communique issued Sunday after a meeting of the 11-nation Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) Saturday, the Arabs stressed that Israel and the U.S. must sign a withdrawal timetable guarantee and have "taken the first step towards implementing" the withdrawal.

Oil industry blamed for crisis

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy has accused the oil industry of steering the White House into the current energy crisis and financing its with a $4 million campaign contribution to re-elect President Nixon.

"This administration is not concerned with the public interest," Kennedy said Saturday during an address to the United Mine Workers 46th constitutional convention.

"It is the private interests that dominate the concerns of this administration when it comes to energy," he said. "When the major oil companies and their executives donated $4 million to the re-election campaign, it should not be too surprising that White House energy policies reflect their interests."

The Massachusetts Democrat said oil executives "have been advising this administration right into the present crisis" and criticized Nixon for proposing to place 250 oil company officials in charge of meeting out emergency measures to cope with the shortage.

"When you want to extinguish a fire, you don't call in a firebug to do the job."

Kennedy also said the five-week Congressional recess for the Christmas holiday could determine whether President Nixon will face impeachment.

He said that the key to impeachment rests with the Republican party and that GOP congressmen would be seeking out the opinions of their constituents during the holiday recess.

Dial it yourself station-to-station. You'll save.

The chart below shows how much you save when you dial calls yourself without operator assistance... and how you save even more when you make your calls evenings, nights and weekends when reduced rates are in effect.

Maximum rates for Long Distance calls within the continental U.S., except Alaska. Lower rates apply for calls of shorter distances.

WEEKENDS	STATION-TO-STATION		PERSON-TO-PERSON
	Dial-it-Yourself	Operator-Assisted
8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sat. and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sun.	70¢ first 3 minutes	$1.40 first 3 minutes	$3.55 first 3 minutes
EVENINGS	85¢ first 3 minutes	$1.40 first 3 minutes	$3.55 first 3 minutes
5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sun. through Fri.
NIGHTS	35¢* first minute (minimum call)	$1.40 first 3 minutes (minimum call)	$3.55 first 3 minutes (minimum call)
11 p.m. to 8 a.m. daily
WEEKDAYS	$1.45 first 3 minutes	$1.85 first 3 minutes	$3.55 first 3 minutes
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon. through Fri.

Rates shown (tax not included) are for coast-to-coast calls. For calls of shorter distances, rates are, of course, even less. Dial-it-yourself rates apply on all calls within the continental U.S. (except Alaska), completed without operator assistance. (For dial-it-yourself rates to Hawaii, call your operator.) They also apply on calls placed with an operator where direct dialing facilities are not available. Dial-it-yourself rates do not apply to person-to-person, coin, hotel guest, credit card or collect calls or to calls charged to another number because an operator must assist on such calls.

*One-minute minimum calls available only at times shown; additional minutes are 20¢ each.

West End wanderings

Turkey paths

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter
BROOKHAVEN — I remember shrieking in horror the first time a West End housewife I know told me she had to clean a turkey path in her livingroom.

"How repulsive," I thought to myself, "turkeys going right through her livingroom." All I could think about was turkey droppings here and there in front of the television set and by the front door.

The more I thought about the situation, the more perplexed I got, however. I just couldn't figure out why anybody would have turkeys going through their livingroom. The only reason I could come up with was that some West Enders might consider turkeys good luck or something, but even that was a little far-fetched.

Finally, I got up enough nerve to ask the woman what this turkey path business was all about. Of course, I was prepared for the worst.

As I soon discovered, I even had a turkey path in my own house that I didn't even know about. And, now that I have discovered it, it's really a help during my weekly cleaning session.

The turkey path my friend was referring to was not actually made by turkeys at all, but by humans. The housewife explained that the turkey path was just another West End way of describing which areas of the house received the most wear and tear.

"When you recognize where your turkey path is," said the housewife, "cleaning will be a lot easier." She explained that when she was in a hurry, she just cleaned up the turkey path or the place that needed it the most. And, at other times, she cleaned the whole house.

She explained that many West End women turkey path every other week and do a thorough cleaning job the week in between.

At first, it was difficult for me to find my turkey path, but with the help of an experienced eye I soon began to see it sticking out at me like a sore thumb.

The rug by my front door received the most wear and then there is the distinct line marking the way into the kitchen and to the West End Bureau office. The last turkey path in my house makes its way into my bathroom.

Now that I am able to recognize the turkey paths, I clean them up one week, and I, too, do the thorough cleaning every other week.

It's fast, the house stays clean a lot easier, and there is a certain satisfaction in being able to find one's own turkey path and keep it clean on the in-between weeks.

It has been about six months that I have followed the advice of my West End neighbor and that I have followed the turkey paths through my house. I hesitate to tell anybody else about my new discovery, however, for fear that they, too, will believe I actually have wild turkeys bounding through my cottage on a regular basis.

REEDERS — The Jackson Township Supervisors have proposed a $94,748.57 budget for 1974, which will reduce property taxes in the township from three to two mills.

According to Board Chairman Larry Butz, the millage was decreased this year because the supervisors wanted to lighten the tax load for local residents. Butz said the measure was not intended to be a temporary one.

According to the chairman, the tax will stay at two mills next year if possible.

What the reduction in taxes means for the average taxpayer can be translated by using the following example:

If a Jackson Township resident has his home valued at $25,000, he will now have to pay $12.50 in property taxes instead of $18.75. The tax is based on the assessed valuation of the home.

In the example, the homeowner pays on one-fourth the value of his home or on $6,250.

Total estimated receipts in 1974 in Jackson Township are expected to reach $94,748.57 with taxes accounting for $53,643.00. The receipts are expected to increase about $13,000 over last year. Most of the increase will come from taxes.

The township's $5 per capita tax will remain the same in 1974.

The supervisors expect to spend $20,000 for general government in 1974; $8,400 of that figure will go toward maintaining the Reeder's School.

The budget proposes $8,500 for planning and zoning, an increase of $8,100 over last year. The additional funds have been allocated in 1974 to cover the cost of drawing up a zoning ordinance.

Highways account for $54,848.57 of the proposed budget. A total of $32,710 will be spent on maintenance and repairs and $20,138.57 will be spent on the construction of and rebuilding of roads.

Only $2,500 has been allocated for the gypsy moth in Jackson Township this year; last year $5,000 was set aside for a local spray program.

According to Township Secretary-Treasurer Rose Schwedler, this budget item was reduced because it is questionable at this time whether a 1974 spray program will be implemented. She said the supervisors would allocate more money for a spray program later if it was needed.

The township expects to receive approximately $22,125.16 in liquid fuel taxes this year and $6,100 in federal revenue sharing funds.

The budget is now available for inspection. The supervisors are expected to officially adopt it at their reorganizational meeting to be held at 8 p.m., Jan. 7 at the Reeder's School.

The Jackson Township books will officially close on Dec. 31.

Printing contest set for students

STROUDSBURG — The Lehigh Valley Club of Printing House Craftsmen has announced plans for a printing contest for graphic arts students from the Monroe County and surrounding area vo-tech schools.

According to Michael J. Hnat, club spokesman, the contest is "part of a continuing effort by the club to strengthen communications between the schools and the local graphic arts industry."

The contest will be coordinated at the school by Larry Zeiner, printing instructor.

The entries will include projects printed by both the letterpress and lithographic printing processes, and will be judged on every phase from layout to finishing.

In addition to Monroe County, vo-tech schools from the Lehigh, Bethlehem, Northampton, Reading, Pa., and Warren, N. J. areas will participate.

The awards will be presented at the club's annual Printing Week dinner meeting to be held on Wednesday, Jan. 16.

The Printing House Craftsmen, founded locally in 1938, is an organization comprised of men and women in all phases of the graphics arts field.

Police in Mount Pocono turn over $701 in revenue

Mount Pocono Bureau
MOUNT POCONO — During the month of November Mount Pocono police department turned over $701.95 to the borough.

Included was $75 for borough violations of the Motor Vehicle Code; $125 for ordinance violations; $50 for crimes code violations; $15 for accident reports; $25 in sewage permits and $10 for building permits.

Parking meter receipts for the month totaled $326.95 and meter fines hit $75.

Ten dollars was turned over the the State for Motor Vehicle Code violations.

The police department, under the direction of Chief Robert Hartman, made 14 traffic arrests and issued 13 traffic warnings. It conducted four criminal investigations and made one criminal arrest. One vehicle accident was investigated.

The department answered 59 requests for assistance and conducted 271 security checks, and made 120 patrols.

The patrol car traveled 2,517 miles during the month.

Yule lights off in Matamoras

MATAMORAS — Christmas lights in the Borough of Matamoras will be turned off this year because of the nationwide fuel shortage.

The Lions Club, which usually decorates the borough, will not light Pennsylvania Avenue or the borough's Christmas tree at the foot of the Port Jervis-Matamoras bridge this year.

The Borough Council also has asked private citizens to tone down house lighting during the Yule season.

First energy czar thrown into bureaucratic mill

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — White House watchers are talking in not-so-gentle whispers about unrequited John Love, first political casualty of the energy war.

They are referring, of course, to the plaintive case of the former Colorado governor who spent six months as a Nixon Administration energy czar without power or portfolio.

There are several versions of why John Love was eased out of his top-level energy job in favor of William E. Simon, the deputy Treasury Secretary.

Love's detractors — and they include key congressmen of both parties — say he was politically inept, a bad administrator, indecisive and ineffective.

The governor's friends maintain he was the loser in a power struggle over the issue of mandatory fuel rationing, with Treasury Secretary George Shultz, Budget Chief Roy Ash and the president's economic advisers holding the winning cards with Nixon.

Insiders insist it wasn't a matter of policy differences because Simon is not adverse to taking tough federal action. He has long favored mandatory allocation while his boss, Shultz, has opposed it.

Love's chief problem may be that he came on the job last July at a time when the Administration had no formalized energy policy. He was given neither staff nor policy direction and found himself swamped between adversaries in the executive branch and pesky congressmen demanding action.

"He could never get a hold on the job," said one informed source. "He was sent to Congress to testify about a policy that didn't exist and to speak against programs with which he agreed."

"Only a super strong point-guy could have survived that," the source added. "It only goes to show that you can't throw every governor in America into this wild bureaucracy and expect him to be able to handle it, no matter how good a record he had back home."

Finally, there is a feeling among some Democrats in Congress that the Love affair can be blamed on the President's continuing inability to concentrate on the energy crisis in the midst of his Watergate trials.

They believe William Simon, the new energy czar, has a better grasp of the problem but they tend to accept Love's parting assessment that Nixon may not yet have fully sensed the seriousness of the energy crisis. The former governor was quoted as saying: "It's been difficult to do anything meaningful and even to get the attention of the president."

As an example, he cited the appearance of the President before the Seafarers Union recently when Mr. Nixon said the energy crisis would be over within a year. The conventional wisdom in Washington is that the country will have to live in an energy crisis of major proportions for perhaps five years.

When Love came here in July, after resigning as governor, the Administration was considering a program of mandatory fuel allocation with which he agreed. Then, he says, it turned out that Secretary Shultz was dead set against it and, according to Love, he persuaded the White House.

For several weeks, Love was in the position of testifying before Congress against mandatory allocation, a program with which he agreed. Although he knew people had been sniping at him from within the Administration for weeks, Love did not get the word until a week ago when he was called in by the President's top aides and shown the plan for reorganization and creation of a new federal energy office.

Love liked the basic plan but he was relegated to a small office as an assistant to the President on energy matters and decided to go back home to practice law, rather than "twiddle my thumbs." Hating to lose a "decent man," the White House offered him the Canadian ambassadorship but he declined.

Simon, an energetic 46-year-old who made good on Wall Street, enjoys a happy reputation on Capitol Hill at the moment. He has drive and intellectual ability and is considered a man of action who won't hesitate to make the necessary moves, however unpopular.

But he still faces the test of selling the new federal energy package to Congress and, what may be equally as important, convincing the President that the crisis is as deep as John Love thought it was.

Watergate gets muckier

White House Chief of Staff Alexander Haig says his boss was "very, very disturbed" and "almost incredulous" when he discovered 18 minutes of crucial Watergate tape had been erased.

Disturbed, we can believe, but incredulous? Given the unreality of the whole Watergate episode and the regularity of the whole Watergate bombshells have burst on the Washington landscape, we would think the President almost could have expected something of the sort to happen.

That he was disturbed is understandable. Nixon had just embarked on "Operation Candor," a program designed to get the Watergate business in the open and clear away some of the clouds of doubt and uncertainty shrouding the Administration. That program was all but fatally wounded by the disclosure that the President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, had accidentally erased a crucial portion of the tapes that were expected (perhaps hoped is a better word) to clear the President.

Miss Woods' explanation of the "accident" is a difficult one to swallow. Coupled with the admittedly poor reproduction on the remaining tapes, this latest development makes the celebrated recordings virtually useless as a last line of defense against the charges growing out of the Watergate caper.

What we're afraid of is that the current disfavor in which the Administration is held will lead to wholesale Republican defeats in next year's congressional elections. Should that happen, it could lead the Democratic leadership to believe it had received a mandate to impeach the President, and could in turn lead to proceedings little resembling the sobriety in which they should be held.

Congress should act to impeach now, while the atmosphere is still bipartisan. With the tapes rendered all but useless psychologically, impeachment is the only way to arrive at a semblance of the truth of Watergate, to clear the President if he is innocent or to indict him if he is not.

We need bottle bill

The Oregon Bottle Bill works. Pennsylvania, please copy.

After one year of imposing a mandatory nickel deposit on every soft drink and beer container — bottle or can — in the state, overall litter has decreased dramatically in the state and the beverage container portion by at least 50 per cent.

Customers had a choice of buying returnable or nonreturnable containers, but they get their nickel back only for the returnable. Overnight the demand for nonreturnables disappeared and bottlers stopped using them.

What about all those horrible things some pessimists predicted would happen?

Every domestic (and most foreign) brand of beer and soft drink available in Oregon in mid-1972 is still available today.

No brewery, no soft drink bottler, and no distributor in the state has gone out of business.

Not one new employee has been added to any state, county or municipal payroll to enforce the Bottle Bill.

Oregon citizens, who are responsible for seeing the system works, have done so with "a minimum of muss and fuss," according to a study by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Legislation to ban all nonreturnable bottles has been introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature. That's a half-way measure (cans would still be permitted), but a good start. Let's get it out of committee and up to the floor for a vote.

Oregon is a better place to live since it enacted its Bottle Bill. We're already one year behind. Let's get going.

Rose Wood chill

To anyone who knows her, the idea of Rose Woods' involvement in the Watergate mess brings an almost galactic chill.

Just what her role was is not yet clear. She says she may have accidentally erased part or all of the 18 minutes of tape, and those 18 minutes just happen to contain every reference to Watergate on that reel.

The accident story could be true, but those who believe it could meet in a telephone booth. More sinister theories are widely circulating. One fervently hopes that they are false.

Yet, one reflects, if Miss Woods could be sucked into the Watergate whirlpool, then absolutely anyone connected with the White House could be too. Personal character would not guarantee protection. Miss Woods is a tough-minded, utterly straight and self-possessed red-head, who in the intra-staff struggles proved that she could say no to Haldeman and make it stick.

Loyal to Nixon

She has been with Nixon and in politics for over twenty years, and there is little she has not seen. She is certainly loyal to Nixon, but she is at least as skeptical about human motivation as Howard Cosell.

As a matter of fact, she tended to look on Haldeman and some of the other chief aides with wry amusement. Relative newcomers, they seemed to be perpetually scurrying around in a fury of activity. The operative syndrome was that busyness and bustle symbolized importance. "That Haldeman," Miss Woods once remarked to me, sitting on the lawn outside her San Clemente office, "is one strange individual."

If she were allowed to erase any portion of the tape as a cover-up, or if, now, in desperation, she is being pushed forward by the White House to cover-up someone else's erasure, a kind of abyss would open up. Rose Woods? She has dinner with the Nixons. She played with the daughters when they were growing up. She and Pat Nixon exchange dresses. She stuck with Nixon all through the lean post-1962 years.

I recall a conversation I had recently with a young lawyer who joined the Nixon Administration early on as a John Mitchell protégé, only to be forced out in the power struggle between the Mitchell and Haldeman factions. "Best thing that has happened to me," he said. "If I had stayed in the White House I'd probably be on the way to jail with all the rest of those poor . . . s." I knew him to be a completely honest fellow, not a weak character at all. He, too, might have been drawn in? I thought of T.S. Eliot's lines: "Gentile or Jew-O you who turn the wheel and look to windward. Consider Phlebas, who was once handsome and tall as you." There, but for the grace of God . . .

The horror is that it now seems to be involving so thoroughly admirable a person as Rose Woods. Yet it is all so mundane in genesis. The original break-in was a crime, but trivial in relation to genuine national issues. Yet since the break-in was discovered, on no given day did it seem "the greater good" to expose everything to daylight. Mitchell did not want to risk the election, etc. That was not necessarily the judgment of a weak or evil man. But now the whirlpool threatens even Rose Woods.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Gargoyle

Spouts that carry rain water from the roofs now extend all the way down the sides of buildings, but they used to extend outward from the roofs so as to protect the walls.

In the Gothic style of architecture the projecting waterspouts were carved into grotesque figures — animal or human. The rain water was discharged from the spout through the figure's mouth.

The waterspouts were called "gargoyles," from the Old French "gargouille" — throat or gullet. By extension, any grotesque figure resembling one of the waterspouts was called a "gargoyle."

Jack Anderson

suffering from the woes and would stop off at the clinic for a massage. He mentioned a masseuse named Olga.

"Olga! Oh ho!" chorled the Soviet president, who apparently was familiar with Olga.

Kremlin aware

Our source said the transcripts showed that the Kremlin chiefs were aware the CIA was listening to them. Anything they already knew, he agreed, should be safe for the American people to be told.

Therefore, it should do no harm to write about the eavesdropping operations, said our source. He cautioned, however, that the monitored conversations didn't make clear whether the Soviet leaders had figured out how we did it.

We published a careful story on September 18, 1971, about the eavesdropping. "For obvious security reasons," we wrote, "we can't give a clue as to how it's done. But we can state categorically that for years the CIA has been able to listen to the kingpins of the Kremlin banter, bicker and backbite among themselves."

The following December, we quoted from secret White House minutes to show that President Nixon had lied to Congress and the public about the India-Pakistan conflict.

Foolish crimes

This brought the President's gunshoes down on our necks with a vengeance. No newsmen in Nixondom have even received a more thorough going-over. The undercover work was done by the plumbers, the bizarre para-police unit whose operatives ran around in CIA wigs and committed foolish crimes.

The bewigged ones, among other things, began checking into our account of the Kremlin bugging. This aroused Richard Helms, then the CIA chief, who invited me to lunch on March 17, 1972.

He asked me not to mention the eavesdropping operation in my book, "The Anderson Papers." He acknowledged that the Kremlin leaders knew their conversations had been monitored. But he pleaded with me to keep quiet and urged me particularly never to mention how the conversations were intercepted.

Accordingly, I omitted the reference from my book and left it to others to reveal the secret monitoring method. Not until today, after the limousine-listening operation has been widely publicized elsewhere, have we mentioned how it was done.

Whispering campaign

Nevertheless, the White House had seized upon this affair to justify the President's claim of national security in the plumbers case. Aides have been whispering that our story shut down one of the best pipelines into the Soviet Union.

This is strictly a red herring, which President Nixon hopes will distract the Watergate bloodhounds. The truth is that: (1) the monitored Kremlin chit-chat was never an important intelligence source; (2) Our September 16, 1971 story revealed nothing the Kremlin leaders didn't already know; and (3) the President's claim of national security simply won't wash.

His motive is perfectly clear. He is vulnerable to charges that he obstructed the investigation of the plumbers. For he has admitted not only that he formed the plumbers but that he ordered Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen not to investigate them.

Now Egil Krogh, the chief plumber, has pleaded guilty to one of the crimes committed by his curious crew. Other criminal indictments have been handed down.

The President's attempt to block an investigation into these crimes, therefore, would appear to be obstruction of justice — which itself is a crime.

His justification for attempting to cover up the plumbers' crimes is national security. But Krogh has cut some of the ground out from under him by telling the judge: "I now feel that I cannot in conscience assert national security as a defense."

Energy crisis pours fuel on nation's bicycle boom

(First of two columns)

The energy crisis has poured fuel on our already blazing bicycle boom — and now sales are really taking off.

An informed estimate is that bicycle sales in 1973 will reach a record 16 million, nearly double the total as recently as 1971 and a full 2 million above sales during the roaring boom year of 1972. Our bicyclist population has crossed the believe-it-or-not peak of 83 million — and 42 per cent are adults. In dollar terms, spending is into the $1 billion range.

"After all, bicycles were invented as a form of personal transportation," says John Savage, author of "The Gold Medal Bicycle Handbook" (Gold Medal Books, 95 cents). "Only after the automobile took over our roads were they downgraded to the status of toys. Now the name of the game is energy efficiency, and a person on a bicycle is the most efficient form of power for land transportation ever devised by man."

"We have pre-sold every bike we could produce since early 1971," adds Jack Smith, national sales manager of the Schwinn Bicycle Co. in Chicago, which sells several different varieties of bikes ranging from about $45 for a child's model to $450. "Only plant capacity limits have kept a lid on sales since then."

"If you want a specific type of bike, just leave your order and don't call us asking for delivery dates. We'll call you," was the wrap-up response of a local dealer with whom I thought I had an in. "I used to worry only about getting enough bikes at Christmas for my friends' children. Now I have to worry about friends like you too."

Today, you can pay from $70 to $500 for an adult's bicycle, and even $1,000 if it's a custom-built machine. This is scarcely in the "toy" class and even if you still label it sports equipment, it's among the costlier items you can buy.

You can buy a good three-speed or even a 10-speed bike for about $85. But if you want more reliability and view a bike as major transportation, you'll probably want to consider a quality imported model in the $150 to $200 range. Favored sources are England, France, Japan and Italy.

If you buy an American-made bike, you'll be in the lower cost levels, suitable for the typical adolescent. European bikes come in various sizes from which you can pick the one which best fits you.

Under today's circumstances, rules on how to shop for and how to save on a bicycle are singularly appropriate and tomorrow's column will give them to you. First, here are vital details to grasp before you even start out.

Decide in advance how much a bike is worth to you and what kind is right for you. Here are your choices. Middleweights: weighing 50 to 60 pounds, one speed only and hard work to pedal. Touring bicycles: miscalled "English racers," weighing 35 to 40 pounds, most have three speeds, good for normal use, are your best buy if you're a casual cyclist. Lightweights: racing bicycles, weighing less than 30 pounds, have from five to 15 speeds, need fairly frequent maintenance, are a top choice for the serious cyclist. Stores also carry a variety of children's bikes. And Pedicabs — or "people pods" — also are being sold. These are three or four-wheel vehicles with hoods made of fiberglass or a similar material. Finally, for the truly timid among you, there are adult tricycles.

Waste money

Do not waste money on bicycle options or accessories. While the cost of bike accessories is much less than auto options, be discriminating in what you buy, if for no other reason than that they all add complexity and weight. Among the most popular and useful accessories are: a bell or horn, a chain and lock; lights; luggage rack or basket. Among the other accessories you can load onto a bike are: an odometer or speedometer; a tool kit; a tire patch kit; extra inner tube; water bottle for long trips; aerosol can of bike-chasing dog repellent. You can also buy special cycling clothes and a protective helmet for areas with dangerous traffic.

To find out how a bike feels and "fits," test ride any model you're considering. A lightweight's turned-down handlebars will feel awkward at first, but if it is long-distance transportation you need, it will be the most comfortable. Also while testing, find out how springy the frame is. A more rigid frame means less pedaling wasted. Guard against raw, sharp or rough edges on any parts, even parts protected by guards and grips.

Roads built for military

By JOHN L. MOORE
Harrisburg News Service
Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Despite what auto owners like to believe, roads — and particularly interstate highways — are built primarily for military purposes, secondarily for trucks.

It's no accident that the American interstate network is known formally as the National Defense System or that truckers in the past decade have been driving like they own the interstates.

And just as our national dependence on a handful of Arab countries has headed us into an oil shortage, the East Coast's regional dependence on truckers driving a handful of interstate highways could force it into a commodities shortage, especially where foodstuffs are concerned, if the truckers launch a prolonged drive to block the interstates.

This is why it is impossible to dismiss last week's trucker protests as so much silliness. They weren't.

It's been a long time, decades, since the Eastern seaboard produced enough meat, milk and vegetables to feed the megalopolis sprawl living between Washington D.C. and Boston. And if the truckers could effectively immobilize the Eastern traffic arteries, the previously incessant shipments of Midwest beef, California lettuce and foods from other parts of the country would simply stop. This in turn could mean that the currently continually replenished supplies of food for the Eastern big cities would run out.

Railroads like the Penn Central, already unable to handle the extra passenger business generated by the gasoline shortage, could never be called upon to bail the East Coast out.

These truckers keep the East Coast in food and they know it. They undoubtedly also know that sustained, effective blockades on a dozen key roads would pose severe threats to New York City. Or Philadelphia. Or Washington D.C.

Last week's trucker protest on Interstate 80 and on the Delaware River Bridge on the main road linking New York with Washington were clearly threats aimed at New York.

What actually would happen if the truckers decided the federal government wasn't doing enough about jacking shipping rates to offset rising fuel costs or wasn't acting fast enough to raise highway speed limits is anybody's guess, but what happened along Rte. 80 in the Poconos last Monday, the Pennsylvania State Police Commissioner issued a tough statement about how the roads belong to everybody and that tractor trailers parked on the roadway would be removed by tow trucks.

But only hours after State Police Commissioner James Barger issued the statement, a state police spokesman was sheepishly conceding Barger was having "difficulty" in enlisting privately-owned wreckers. And reliable reports from the Poconos said that private tow truck owners were turning Barger down because they were afraid.

By mid-week, Gov. Milton Shapp was pleading with the commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard for use of the Guard's 64 heavy duty wreckers, and a tentative arrangement was worked out. But truckers largely ended their protests here before the Guard was ever called to mobilize its trucks.

At the weekend, reports indicated that hundreds of truckers were still waiting along Rte. 80 to renew the blockades if Washington wasn't meeting their demands.

While last week's protests ended relatively peaceable, there are two things to remember: that the blockades were only openers and that the truckers largely called them off themselves.

What will happen if the truckers launch an all-out coordinated drive to blockade several — or a dozen — interstates remains to be seen.

GOP talk grows over Nixon resignation

By MARK BROWN
Harrisburg News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The confirmation of Gerald Ford as Vice President last week brought sighs of relief from a number of Pennsylvania Republican Congressmen.

Their most immediate problem was resolved: House Speaker Carl Albert is no longer first in line if President Nixon leaves office.

In his place is a man they believe represents the mandate of 1972 minus the aura of suspicion which has built up around President Nixon. They've all served with Gerry Ford, like him personally, and respect him politically.

But Ford's confirmation has touched off some of the strongest talk yet from Republicans that President Nixon must leave office.

As Rep. Joseph M. McDade,

R-Scranton explained: "There will be a freer discussion of the questions of resignation and impeachment than before because we're in a more stable position nationally. There won't be so much uncertainty."

Republican Senator Jacob K. Javits of New York started the speculation the day before Ford was confirmed when he declared that "any call for resignation will (now) come properly to the front and . . . I and others will have to give every thoughtful consideration to that possibility."

Someone asked Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa. if he anticipates more demands for Nixon's removal and he replied: "No, I do not expect it. What I expect is more questions like that."

Freshman Republican E.G. "Bud" Shuster of West Providence Township, a strong

backer of the President, said "It's certainly true there is much more talk on the floor of resignation or impeachment."

There's much talk we'll have the impeachment question on the floor by this spring."

Shuster added that he doesn't think Nixon will resign or that he should resign.

Ann Landers

Christmas changed

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this in your column, although I won't be around to read it. I will have left for Bangkok, Thailand.

Sometime circulated as essay around the office — written by a man named William Kirchoff, whom I don't know. He's a friend of someone who works here. I can't quote the essay verbatim because I don't have it, but it expressed my views perfectly.

Mr. Kirchoff says Christmas is dead. The American people have stood it up against the wall and executed it. From its grave, a ghost has risen. The ghost calls itself "Christmas," but it's a poor imitation of the real thing.

The change that hit me first was the tree. When I was a boy a Christmas tree was green and it smelled like a tree. The ornaments were pretty — some were homemade. Today, a green Christmas tree — a live one — is rare. The "in" tree is white, silver or pink. It sparkles with sprayed-on stuff. The lights blink to keep time with a hidden stereo that plays Christmas music.

And this brings me to the next big change. "Silent Night" just doesn't make it anymore. It has to be sexy, like, "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus." The worst indignity is "Santa Baby." It comes back every year, like an itch.

Poor old Santa is no longer the jovial gentleman who puts candy canes in the children's stockings. Ho, ho, ho. He is the guy from Central Casting in the nylon suit that retails for $14.95. He comes riding into town, not on a sleigh with reindeer, but in an open-top convertible, surrounded by six half-naked beauty contest winners. A month early.

When the kiddies sit on his knee, he listens to what they want, then tells them where to drag their parents to buy these goodies. Santa has gone slightly commercial.

Worst of all, the spirit of Christmas is gone. Family get-togethers are now out of the question because people are busy with office parties. And that's another story. Booze flows like it's being piped in from the city reservoir.

Stenographers smooch behind water coolers and filling cabinets with men whose first names they wouldn't dare use any other day of the year. All this in the name of Christmas.

Christmas, the one day of the year set aside for Peace On Earth, Good Will Toward Men. They couldn't leave it alone. They had to go and kill it.

Idaho Reader

Dear Reader: Thanks for sharing. And now I have some news for you. My column appears in the Bangkok World. (Yes, it's in English.) See you in Thailand!

Dear Ann Landers: I need to know what to do. I don't trust my own judgment. Too much emotion involved.

For years I have been giving my nieces and nephews a Christmas check. No big deal when I started but the number has grown from three to 27. Last year it was very difficult, but I made it. Through June I had to do without things I really needed. This year, what with inflation and four new babies, I just can't manage those checks.

Should I write a note of apology or should it be better to remain silent? I want to do what's right.

Florida Woe

Dear F.W.: Write a note expressing some warm sentiment. Say you regret that there will be no check this year but you send your love, as always.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Few things come that way anymore. In fact, the only two I can think of are babies and sweet potatoes.

For the past two weeks I've been holed up in the hall closet (we have no basement) putting together a lawn sweeper for my husband for Christmas.

he trying to attach the brush to the handle, and me trying to put together a wheel. Finally, it was finished. We cracked the closet door to make sure no one was about for the unveiling. Then we started to wheel it out. It stopped stubbornly at the door frame. No way could that lawn sweeper fit through the door.

"What are you going to do?" asked my son. "Take it apart and start all over again?"

"Are you crazy?" I snapped. "Tomorrow I'm putting in a lawn and planting a maple tree in the hall closet!"

RECURRING HEADACHES FROM NECK
By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder

A recent article states two New York Scientists contend that chronic headaches are traced to the neck, which often undergoes a lessening or a sharpening of its normal curve, due to childhood injuries; wrestling, falls from sleds, or bicycles, and etc.

In a series of 100 head-achy adolescents they eliminated all known causes of the headache except the neck, x-ray indicated the neck was involved. Ninety-seven of the 100 patients became well with physical therapy.

The scientists concluded: the neck must be considered in every headache case of unknown origin; a contention Chiropractic has had for the past 75 years.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to illustrate and explain the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, Chiropractic Orthopedist, Brodheadsville, Pa. 18322, Phone 992-4787).

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — You may have to make some concessions now, but that would be better than losing out altogether. And when you make them, do be gracious. Drop that chip the Aries sometimes carries on his shoulder.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — A situation on your home base may be annoying, but try to understand the dilemma confronting a family member. If faced in a mature manner, you can help find a solution.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — A short journey in the near future could bring profit, pleasure. Throw off secret fears, doubts. You are on the right track. An "old flame" is due to reappear.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — A new outlook will help you to improve relations with associates, co-workers. Insight may come through your highly intuitive faculties. . . . more flexibility through the erasure of past concepts.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — A day in which to stress your self-confidence, show what you can do. A unique idea, coupled with plans for carrying it out, will impress superiors.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Your financial situation about to improve. A member of the opposite sex will provide useful information — and inspiration. You will know what has to be done.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Do not become frustrated over possible delays or disappointments. With your innate intelligence and ingenuity, you can change undesirable situations.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Fine planetary influences. With initiative and enterprise, more than usual can be achieved.

Day will definitely respond to spunk, pulling power.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — It's not like you to throw your weight around, insist on your own way or give ultimatums, but such tendencies prevail now. So . . . watch your step. There's no use in alienating others.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Stars warn against vacillating, changing plans or projects before they have been given a fair chance. Be steadfast. Nothing has changed since activities were initiated.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — A day for listening well and voicing honest opinions. Take stock of why certain maneuvers and tactics did not succeed in the past and avoid them now.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — A day in which to get away from routine. New scenes, new places, new people could spark a brand new interest in your life, make it more stimulating.

YOU BORN TODAY are roundly talented and will show definite leanings toward certain interests early in life. Follow your intuition: it is potent. You have an intense love of freedom and independence and may eschew marriage and domesticity for fear of being "trapped." Where your career is concerned, you have many choices, notably in the business and (or) financial world; in music, literature, medicine, the law or science. You have an ardent nature, but are not particularly demonstrative; love the outdoors, sports and animals. Birthdate of: Cesar Franck, noted composer; Emily Dickinson, American poet; Chet Huntley, TV news commentator.

The bidding:
East South West North
1 ♠ 2 ♥ 2 ♠ 4 ♥
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead — six of spades.

This deal occurred in the Holland-Italy match during the 1966 world championship. Forquet, playing with Garozzo for Italy, opened as dealer with a spade — consistent with the Italian style of bidding the shorter of two long suits first. Kreyns, playing with Slavenburg, quickly got to four hearts on the sequence shown and West led a spade.

Kreyns promptly discarded both of his diamond losers on the A-K of spades. Eventually he lost a heart and a club and wound up making five for a score of 450 points.

At the second table, where Pabis Ticci and d'Alelio were North-South for Italy, the bidding followed an entirely different pattern and the outcome was likewise different. The bidding went:

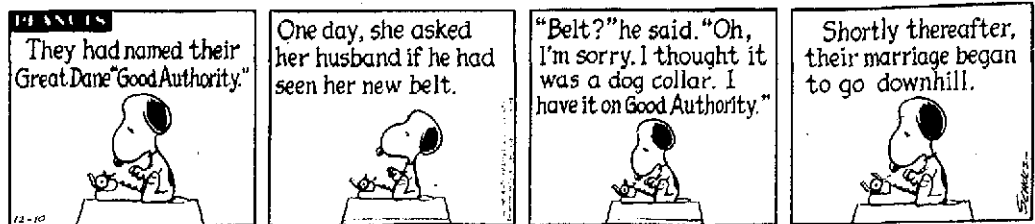

East South West North
1 ♠ 3 ♣ 3 ♦ 3 ♣
4 ♠ Pass Pass 4 ♠

The three club bid by d'Alelio conventionally indicated a two-suited hand with hearts and clubs, which explains Pabis Ticci's odd-looking four-heart bid on a three-card suit.

The defense against four hearts was of a sensational order. Blitzblum (East, playing with DeLeeuw) led the ace of clubs and shifted at trick two to the four of diamonds!

DeLeeuw won the diamond with the jack and returned a club at trick three — since East's club lead, on the bidding, clearly marked him with the singleton ace.

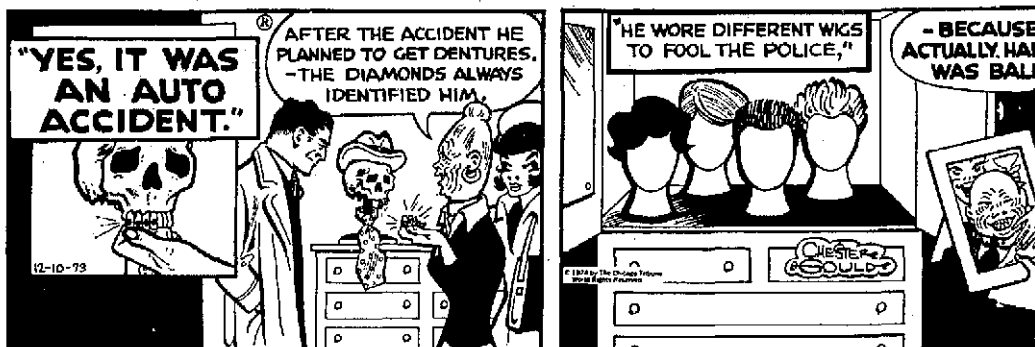

Blitzblum ruffed the club return and his partner eventually scored the ace of trumps to put the contract down one. The Dutch team thus gained 500 points on the deal.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Jack Benny's longplay pal, was dropped from Alice Faye's "Good News" stage revival; couldn't remember lines ... Bdw. producer Saint-Subber ("Gigi" is his latest) will wed a Claudette Colbert best-pal Barbadian babe ... Fredric March had a serious stroke ... NBC-TV drama critic Geoffrey Holder reviews Bdw. shows as if explaining them to puppies ... Give NBC's tomorrow-yawner Tom Snyder another few years and he'll pronounce

"dour" right ... Norma Terris, who starred in the 1972 original Bdw. "Showboat," dined in Louise's E. 58th St. spot looking young enough for a current revival ... Alfred Hitchcock's one a.m. TV interview was on at the correct time: leprous-love and cannibalism were just a few of his blithe frighteners ... Lovely (and rich!) Carol Haussman gave actress-gem designer Maggie Hayes a coming-out-party: to toss Maggie back into the social scream and romance lottery after her divorce from Herbert Bayard Swope Jr. (Jr.) ... Maggie will be a grandmarm early in '74.

Sarah Miles of Burt Reynolds-headlines had her own London-based mom sum her up: "She tends to fantasize and exaggerate, especially to the press." ... Soap opera's Don Stewart with tongue-in-cheek decries his inability to find the right gal to wed in mag interviews while all the while Susan Tremble is up at Don's shack fairly permanently and openly.

John McMartin and Rachel

Roberts (in fact, the whole ensemble) give "The Visit" splendid individual and collective mummery but the somewhat hoary Friedrich Duerrenmatt Gothic-whimsy telegraphs all its intentions in the first few minutes: greed, revenge, weakness, less than Greek-tragedy power in its hallow inevitability; it's the first of the New Phoenix Repertory Theater schedule of three, a Feydeau farce ("Chemin de Fer") and Phillip Barry's charming old drawing room politeness "Holiday" coming up ... Some of the critics thought it as good as, if not superior to, The Lunts in "The Visit" 16 seasons ago, but they must have been looking back through rose-tinted calendars.

Nancy Sinatra Jr.'s ex, Tommy Sands, will wed Sheila Wallace in Hawaii ... The "Murf the Surf" film role of the Manhattan gem-heister who ripped off the famed Star of India ruby from the Museum of Natural History (billionaire John Mac Arthur paid the ransom and Murf was busted after he collected will be played in the movie by Don Stroud, son of Clarence of the comic Stroud Twins of transient radio fame ... The European script buzzing the French rumor factory is Dick & Sofia & Liz & Ari ... Peter Lawford's out of the cast: he's down to a scary 120 lbs. ... Daughters Inc. is a new "feminist publishing house": June Arnold and Parke Bowman are owners with five books for the Yule trade.

Our Hugh Hefner-daughter item ousted: a point was — Playboy owner Hef's live-in Barbie and his daughter both posed nude in mags last month: awww! Gets you right here, doesn't it? In the craw ... Playboy, its filthier illegit offspring Oui, Penthouse and other naked trademags for sexual freaks all pitching "Christmas" gift subscriptions — nothing like filth for the Holy Day.

Seagram topper Edgar Bronfman and wife divorced and he quietly wed lovely Lady Caroline Townshend of the London tiara set ... Bobby Short, barefoot boy with chic, now has the sincerest flattery — imitation: the Wig & Pen on E. 60th St.

signed Ronny White, described as "The White Bobby Short." Peter Cook and Dudley Moore of the hit-revue "Good Evening" have been pals and partners 14 years but not off-stage.

THE TERRY
The design of the Daneker Terry Clock was inspired by the Ell Terry model popular in the early 19th Century. It is with great pride that we submit this clock to you for, as with all Daneker Clocks, we are proud of our craftsmanship from the initial dovetailing of the solid wood main casing to the beautifully hand-carved finish. Note the intricate scroll work on this Terry.

The clock is a separate item but it is so constructed that it can be fastened to the wall and the clock hung on the wall.

Height 70" 8 day, spring wound Pendulum movement with Westminster chime or Half Hour Bim-Bam

One of the largest of the Daneker Floor Clocks is this President model. Standing just a bit taller than a six-foot man, this impressive masterpiece of clock and cabinet-making was proportioned for the larger rooms and hallways of today's homes. Although it does not have the size of the old-time grandfather clocks, the appearance of massiveness of this solid wood clock obtained through design, makes this President Clock the outstanding appointment in a home.

Optometrists urge safe Christmas

MCKEESPORT — The Vision Conservation Institute has sounded its annual call for a safe Yuletide.

"A safe Christmas is a merry Christmas," said Dr. Richard Feldstein, president of the state optometrists' professional organization. "And we just want to make sure that people take care of themselves while they are carefree during the holiday season."

"Naturally, as optometrists, we are more concerned with how people care for and protect their eyes," Dr. Feldstein said, "but we also are worried about all the extra hazards around the house at this time of year."

The VCI president cautioned parents to "use your good, old-fashioned horse sense when buying toys for the children."

"Think of the child who will be playing with the toy," he said. "There should be no small objects for the young child who puts everything in his mouth. Neither should the young child have toys that shoot projectiles or have keen edges."

Dr. Feldstein warned that chemistry sets should be only for older, more responsible children.

He noted that gift-buyers should make certain that toys do not contain lead-based paint. "If you can't tell for sure," he said, "don't buy it."

On a final note, Dr. Feldstein said:

"This is a little off the track and it may sound like it could never happen, but parents would be surprised how many children's eyes are burned because the child was too near the living room or gameroom fireplace and got hit with a flying spark."

"In short," he said, "make certain the fireplace screen is closed as soon as the fire is started."

Monroe gas station hit again

MARSHALLS CREEK — A gas station robbed of $180 10 weeks ago was held up for an undetermined amount of cash early Saturday morning.

The Rob-Rol service station on Rte. 209 in Marshalls Creek was robbed at 4 a.m. Saturday by a man wielding a knife, according to State Police at Stroudsburg.

The attendant on duty, Stanley Decker, 22, of Marshalls Creek, was completing the night audit when the hold up occurred.

The bandit is described as being between 30 and 35 years old, with long brown hair, and was wearing a red and black hunting jacket.

On Sept. 29 two attendants were robbed by two men armed with knives.

Paul Courtright

PHILADELPHIA — Paul Courtright, 63, East Stroudsburg R. D. 1, died Sunday at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Irma (Primrose) Courtright, at home.

Born in Monroe County, he was the son of the late Harry and Bertha (Wheatcroft) Courtright. He was a lifetime county resident and was employed as a refrigeration technician for Lawton Huffman Co., Inc. for many years.

He was a member of the Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Church and the Stroudsburg Eagles Lodge 1106. He was a former member of the Middle Smithfield Twp. School Board and then later became a member of the School Board of the East Stroudsburg Jointure.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by two sons, Steve, Wind Gap and Dennis, Secane; four sisters, Mrs. Ruth Warner and Mrs. Sarah Miller, both of East Stroudsburg, Miss Carol Courtright, Elmhurst, N. Y. and Mrs. Althea Zimmerman, Knoxville, Tenn.; a brother, Arthur, Snyder'sville and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Lanterman Funeral Home, 27 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, with Rev. Thomas MacAdam officiating.

Burial will be in the Sand Hill Cemetery, Shoemakers.

Viewing will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home. The family requests memorial donations be made to the Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Church.

Dance concert scheduled

EAST STROUDSBURG — A dance concert, "The Soul of Japan," will be presented at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 11 in the dance studio of Koehler Fieldhouse at East Stroudsburg State College.

The concert will be presented by a company of six Japanese modern dancers who will perform under choreographer Akiko Ishii who has studied under Baku Ishii, Japan's foremost authority of modern dance, and Eugene Loring and Martha Graham of the United States.

Since Miss Ishii's debut recital in 1951, she has danced the female lead role in "Madame Butterfly" with the Tokyo Ballet Theatre and has presented her own new works on various occasions.

The performance is being sponsored by the Contemporary Dance Club of the college under the direction of Mary Jane Wolbers, assistant professor of physical education.

Additional details and ticket reservations may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Wolbers at 424-3331.

Pocono boy singers to perform

EAST STROUDSBURG — The familiar strains of Handel's Messiah will again be heard this season, as the Pocono Boy Singers prepares to give the oratorio for the third time. With the assistance of a men's chorus and the Baroque section of the Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia, the boys will present all of Part I of the classic, and a substantial part of the chorus work in the remainder of the oratorio.

Performances of Handel's Messiah are common throughout the United States and the world. Performances which are given by choirs of men and boys are rarely heard. The performance practices of Messiah have included enormous choruses which number into the thousands. The first performance, however, was given in Dublin by a choir of men and boys. Handel featured women soloists for the soprano parts, but usually featured boy sopranos.

Even the solos are taken by boys, or sometimes groups of boys who sing the solos as a soprano chorus. Robert Stockholm will again sing the bass solos. All the solo passages are ornamented with trills, mordents, and cadenzas as was the practice in performances of Baroque music in Handel's time.

The performance will again be given at the East Stroudsburg United Methodist Church, 62 Courland Street, East Stroudsburg. The work is to be performed at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 22.

Tickets will be available for seating in the church sanctuary, as well as in the Sunday School Auditorium. Tickets went on sale on Saturday, Dec. 1. For information about tickets, call 717-839-7133. Reservations for seats in the sanctuary should be made early in December.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record's circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column is designed to answer any questions or solve any problems — consumer, government or anything else. Send questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions must be in writing and signed in full. No telephone calls, please.

Q. How long does it take for a letter to appear in Ann Landers' column? I wrote her in August, but still haven't seen my letter. Does she print all of them? Will she reply by mail if you include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

F.K., East Stroudsburg

A. Ann Landers decides what questions she prints and which ones she doesn't. She does, however, print them as quickly as she can if she prints them at all. Not every question gets in print, but she will send an answer if you enclose a mailable envelope for that purpose.

More responses to the cross-stitching request: Sara Jane Levin, Merry Hill Farm, East Stroudsburg, R.D. 1 asks inquiries be sent to her address. Helen Patti, 377 Broadhead Ave., East Stroudsburg, will also entertain requests about cross-stitching.

Q. I have a house built of cedar plywood. Woodpeckers are making holes large enough that the house insulation is exposed. What can I do to get rid of them?

E.D., East Stroudsburg

A. Let your fingers do the walking through the Yellow Pages. When they walk upon the page with "Exterminating" on it, stop them. Look for firms that do work on bird problems. There are quite a few of them listed.

Q. In November of 1972, I ordered a two-year subscription to "True Story Book" through a salesman for Stauffer Publications in Topeka, Kansas. I paid $11 for this subscription, but I still haven't received an issue. Can you help me?

D.G., Kunkletown, R.D. 1

A. Sure can. Stauffer Publications said they'd check your receipt number with the salesman, who they said might be a Mr. Bach, and get the magazine in the mail to you on the double.

Q. My daughter came home for the holidays from college with the news (???) that if one saves the tags from any brand of tea bags, they can eventually be traded in for a seeing-eye dog or wheelchair. Is this true or is it just a wild rumor?

Mrs. M.S., Mountainhome

A. We checked with the offices of a tea company in Philadelphia and the rumor (or whatever) was met with some laughter. They said they, too, had heard such a rumor, but speaking for their firm, they said it was a rumor. Now, if any reader can substantiate such a collection, we'd like to know about it.

Q. Earlier this fall, I filed a complaint with the Bureau of Consumer Protection in Allentown about the faulty work on my swimming pool. I received an acknowledgment from the Bureau in October, but nothing since. What's happened to my complaint?

Mrs. P.M., Pocono Summit

A. We called the office and Chief Investigator Skip Idukas said he'd drop you a line outlining the action the Bureau has taken. He'll fill you in on the status of your case, too.

Q. I have a book of history of Pennsylvania by J.R. Sypher, from 1888. Does it have any value?

J.S., East Stroudsburg

A. Readers, especially in the case of an antique bottle a few weeks back, have been very helpful again and again with things such as this. Why kill a helpful source?

Q. Could you tell me where I might be able to redeem some Top Value Stamps I have? I have five books and would like to redeem them or trade them with someone.

J.C.S., East Stroudsburg

A. We had such an address of a redemption center, but misplaced it. Perhaps a reader will drop us a line and help you with this.

Career center opens in E-burg

What do you want to be when...

EAST STROUDSBURG — Seventh and eighth graders in the East Stroudsburg Area School District are learning about career and vocational opportunities this fall through the implementation of a pilot federal program.

An exemplary career resource center has been set up in the junior-senior high school to inform students of what kind of jobs might interest them.

East Stroudsburg is one of four school districts in the Commonwealth, and the only one in the Monroe County area to receive funds.

Each of the four districts is given $10,056 for the 73-74 academic year. Part of this aid is set aside for a para-professional who receives a salary not to exceed $3,000.

The superintendent then met with Dr. Sydney Jaffe, program head who said East Stroudsburg would be eligible.

School board members approved the pilot operation at their Sept. 17 meeting. They also agreed to pay the expense of the salary of the para-professional for the 74-75 school year.

Bookbinder said the district first thought of placing the resource center in the library, but because of close quarters decided on a temporary room across from the business education offices.

Joseph Naratili, the para-professional, is presently sorting out the educational material which has been arriving from companies during the past month. Miss Marlene Hecht, a secondary guidance counselor, is overseeing the program.

The district budgeted $3,500 for items such as books on careers and cassettes and $3,000 for viewers, projectors and recorders.

Books are written for students on a seventh and eighth grade level and the cassettes range from jobs such as landscape operators to what is needed to be a purchasing agent.

Bookbinder said students will be able to use the center during their free classes. Naratili is compiling a catalogue of what is available which will be explained to students by their teachers.

S-burg teachers organize to solve school problems

STROUDSBURG — A new approach to solving problems in the Stroudsburg Area School District was recently instituted by the Stroudsburg Area Teachers Assn.

The teacher organization formed an Instruction and Professional Development (IPD) Council to research a wide variety of problems in the school district and take steps to solve them.

Council chairman Kenneth Lee said the Stroudsburg group is patterned after the Pennsylvania State Education Association's IPD Council formed last January.

The State Education Assn. through its 11 regional offices is trying to implement the council into all school districts.

Lee said Monroe County is one of seven counties that are members of the Northeast Region out of Scranton.

The chairman appointed five subcommittees to look at problems related to teacher certification, in-service education for the professional staff, teacher evaluation, improvement of instruction and youth education.

He hopes the teachers in the district will have more of a say in future in-service days and believes the council will help with the problem of opening the district's open-concept middle school next fall.

Lee hopes the council will up-date the grading system, apply innovative concepts to teaching practices, evaluate what's occurring within the district, seek information and research from individuals and groups for projects, attempt to eliminate student indifference and create a better learning climate.

Gabriel Kolcun, president of the Stroudsburg Area Teachers Assn. believes, "The SATA's IPD Council will serve as a vehicle for change in the Stroudsburg Area School District. Not only will teachers and students be encouraged to take part in the council's research, but also the whole community will be asked to respond and provide us with information."

"Our IPD Council will listen to anyone. We want what's best for both students and education. They are inseparable. We are the professional educators and we are sure the public wants advice from the experts."

Both Lee and Kolcun said they need the support of the parents of students and the Stroudsburg community in making their findings and recommendations known to the Stroudsburg Area School Board.

Kolcun further stated, "Schools are the pride of most communities, reflecting educational and social values."

Prisoner hangs himself inside Monroe County jail

By FLIP DeLUCA
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A prisoner at the Monroe County Jail charged with burglary was found hanging in his cell Saturday evening.

Larry R. Marshall, 22, of the Fernwood in Bushkill, was pronounced dead on arrival at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The man was alive when found during a routine cell check at 6:30 p.m., according to Sheriff Forrest Sebring. "We administered first aid, oxygen, and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation," the sheriff said.

Marshall ripped a piece of the cloth enclosing his bunk's mattress and tied it to a cross piece on the bars of his cell and then around his neck, Sebring stated.

Daniel G. Warner, coroner, attributed death to hanging and labeled it a suicide.

Mental patient

The victim was being treated at the mental health center at the hospital and had just returned from treatment that day, according to Tpr. Donald Kresge of the State Police barracks at Stroudsburg.

Marshall was arrested Nov. 29 and charged with burglary by Stroudsburg Police after he allegedly attempted to steal a stereo from a N. Fifth Street home and was caught by the owner.

Marshall appeared before District Magistrate Graden Praetorius Friday afternoon and was bound over for court on the burglary charge. He had been held in lieu of $5,000 bail since his arrest. There was also a parole detainer placed on Marshall, who was reportedly on parole from Northampton or Lehigh county.

It was the first suicide in the jail in at least seven years, according to Sebring. There have been two deaths due to heart attacks, the sheriff reported, and other suicide attempts of which none was successful.

The victim reportedly had a drug problem and had attempted suicide in the past. Investigation by State Police at Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg Borough Police is continuing.

Heat's on grass roots

Local boards may pour oil

HARRISBURG — The federal heating oil allocation program is going to need help from county commissioners in establishing local distribution boards.

The boards, to be organized on a local level as need dictates, are mandated by the federal program.

State Allocation Officer William H. Wilcox has sent all boards of commissioners letters asking for suggestions on the boards and the program.

In a further effort at explanation, Wilcox and his staff will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at the Worthington Scranton Campus in Dunmore to inform the public of their plans.

A similar meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 12 in the Whitehall High School Auditorium, in Whitehall.

Local boards for the program, which becomes effective Dec. 27, should be comprised of both oil consumers and suppliers, according to federal rules.

There is no fixed geographical basis for board organization, regulations stipulate only "reasonable geographic accessibility."

However, Wilcox said "it is our desire to urge a great deal of freedom at the local level for the structuring and operation of these boards."

The boards would hear appeals on hardship cases from homeowners and businessmen, so-called "end-users" in the federal regulations.

Pike County Commissioners received the state's letter Thursday and reserved comment for study.

Monroe County Commissioners may have some comment when they meet this morning.

Under the federal rules, a priority and allocation base for heating fuel has been established.

Homeowners will have to reduce temperatures by at least six degrees to meet allocation cuts. Commercial users must cut back 10 degrees, as should government and other users.

The users of heating oil will receive oil on the basis of "certified need," that is, the amount needed at the reduced temperature. However, each purchaser will receive a fill-up for the first delivery after the program is in effect.

Suppliers will give warning notices to those users who use more than their allocation.

Each user will be supplied by the distributor who filled his heating tank as of Nov. 1. If a user is unable to find a supplier, he may go to his local board for help.

Thousands left powerless by triple electrical fizzle

STROUDSBURG — Many area residents were probably late for church Sunday morning as three separate power outages were experienced in the Stroudsburg area.

According to James Walton, a Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. spokesman, 1,016 customers in the Lake Naomi, Pocono Lake and Pocono Preserve areas lost electrical power at 6:54 a.m. Sunday when a dead tree toppled onto a power line near Lake Naomi.

The power was shut off automatically and a repair crew from Mount Pocono was dispatched to the scene of the break. Heavy rain and high winds caused the rotten tree to fall, Walton said. Power was restored to that area by 8:35 a.m.

Shortly after the first interruption, a locust pin on a power pole on Thomas Street in Stroudsburg failed at 7:09 a.m. The wire fell on the wooden cross arm of the pole and set it on fire.

Men and equipment from the Stroudsburg

Fire Co. blocked off Thomas Street between Sixth and Seventh Streets and stood by for over an hour while a PP&L crew from Stroudsburg worked on the trouble.

According to Walton, the hot wire burned through the cross arm of the pole and fell on to another line. Power was out for 1,258 customers along Thomas, Second and Fifth Streets and throughout the entire south side of Stroudsburg.

Service was restored at 9:32 a.m., two hours and 23 minutes after the blackout.

Shortly before repairs on the Stroudsburg trouble were complete, service to 932 customers in East Stroudsburg was interrupted. Walton said no damage to any lines which would have caused the outage was found, but said two wires might have rubbed together in the wind.

Service was out for 17 minutes beginning at 9:15 a.m. but was restored by resetting an automatic shut off switch.

Barrett budget reduces tax

MOUNTAINHOME — Homeowners in Barrett Township will realize a 1974 tax savings of about $18.75 on homes valued at $25,000.

Barrett's proposed budget of $266,000 for 1974 is increased by $6,438 over 1973, but real estate taxes have been decreased by three mills.

Adopting of a one per cent earned income tax in 1973 plus a $64,177 cash balance in township funds made possible the decrease in millage.

Estimated receipts total $201,822. Included in this amount is $42,000 real estate tax, $15,000 real estate transfer tax, $108,000 earned income tax, $29,949 other revenue and $6,873 from non-revenue.

All of the earned income tax will remain in the township since the Pocono Mountain School District does not assess this tax.

Of the estimated $181,500 budgeted for expenditures, a cash balance of $85,500 is anticipated at the end of the year.

Expenditures are: administration, $20,000 (increased $207); tax collection, $6,900 (increased $770); police, $39,600 (increased $3,588); fire protection, $5,060 (decreased $3,840); municipal buildings, $8,000 (increased $93); snow removal, $9,140 (increased $11); road and bridge construction, $30,500 (increased $13,000); and miscellaneous, $32,800 (increased $2,000).

Pay increases for full-time township employees have been included in the budget and will be adopted early in 1974.

Budgeted under street lighting funds is $11,000 for repairing damage from this year's June flood.

Other expenditures include $7,500 for planning, zoning and building regulations, decreased $10,866 from last year, and $11,000 for gypsy moth control.

Other expenditures include $7,500 for planning, zoning and building regulations, decreased $10,866 from last year, and $11,000 for gypsy moth control.

Federal revenue sharing funds expected is $20,280. The township has a balance from 1973 of approximately $15,000 plus interest, bringing the total to $37,280.

The township will derive $30,000 from state liquid fuels allocation and has a balance of $15,818 from 1973, bringing the total to $45,818.

A date for the adoption of the budget will be set at the supervisors' meeting Wednesday night.

Closing date for township books is Dec. 31. Supervisors' reorganization meeting will be held Jan. 7, 1974.

Home engulfed in smoke

POCONO SUMMIT — A small blaze in a Stillwater Lakes home was quickly contained by Pocono Summit firemen early Sunday morning but heavy smoke filled the house.

According to fire officials, 20 men and three pieces of equipment remained at the scene for nearly an hour to clear smoke from the house owned by Mrs. Donald Copp, of 618 Stillwater Drive.

Three children and a baby sitter were evacuated safely from the house. The fire started when a bed pillow fell onto an electric heater and started to smolder. Little fire damage resulted.

At 8 a.m. Sunday, Stroud Township firemen extinguished a blaze in a trash hopper outside Drackett Inc. on Rte. 447. No damage was reported.

Planner urges preparation

BETHLEHEM — Sussex County, N. J. Planning Director Andrew Paszkowski told the members of Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC) Saturday they must prepare more police, first aid and other services to meet the bulk of people who will visit the recreation area.

Each of the six member counties, including Monroe, must prepare a study of the impact of the Tocks Island recreation area.

Outlaw holds up New York for crucial interception

Eagles cop win by 24-23

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Cornerback John Outlaw returned an intercepted pass 45 yards for a touchdown Sunday to clinch a comeback that lifted the Philadelphia Eagles to a 24-23 victory over the New York Jets.

Quarterback Al Woodall, playing because Joe Namath was sidelined with a swollen knee, piloted the Jets to a 17-0 lead in the first half before the Eagles' offense got going under the methodical direction of Roman Gabriel.

Gabriel drove the Eagles 63 yards in 36 seconds just before the half ended to score on a two-yard pass to Don Zimmerman and started the second half with a 62-yard scoring pass to Harold Carmichael.

Bobby Howfield then kicked his second of three field goals for the Jets, but Tom Dempsey booted a 40-yard field goal to keep the Eagles three points back midway through the third period.

On the second play following the ensuing kickoff of the Eagles, Outlaw grabbed a Woodall sideline pass at the 45-yard line and dashed into the end zone.

Howfield added a 41-yard field goal with 3:35 left in the game, but the Eagles held the Jets on four plays at midfield when the Jets got the ball again with 2:06 to play.

The Jets, with Namath nursing a knee swollen in a practice session last Thursday, turned Emerson Boozer loose for 160 yards on 21 carries and two touchdowns in their bid to gain commanding lead in the first half.

Boozer scored both of his TDs within a 96-second span of the first quarter on an 11-yard pass from Woodall and a two-yard scamper around his left end.

Woodall drove the Jets 76 yards after the opening kickoff for their first scoring thrust, highlighted by a 49-yard pass to tight end Rich Caster.

Simpson near season mark as Bills gain win by 37-13

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — O. J. Simpson ran for 219 yards to move within 60 of Jim Brown's one-season record, scored one touchdown and set up another with a 70-yard run to power the Buffalo Bills to a 37-13 victory over the New England Patriots Sunday on a snow-covered field.

Simpson's yardage, in 22 carries, gave him 1,803 yards for the season, just 60 short of Brown's record set in 1963. The Bills have one game remaining, next Sunday against the New York Jets.

Rookie quarterback Joe Ferguson threw two touchdown passes to Bob Chandler, both in the second half—a 37-yarder and a six-yarder set up by Simpson's run from the Buffalo 20 to the New England 10.

Simpson went over 200 yards early in the fourth quarter and received a prolonged standing ovation from the 72,470 fans when the offense left the field.

Simpson carried the ball over from the six early in the second quarter to put the Bills in front, 14-3.

Wallace Francis returned a kickoff 90 yards early in the game and John Leybold kicked three field goals—24, 20 and 34 yards—to account for the Bills' other scoring.

Simpson had only 43 yards in the first half, but broke loose for his 70-yard run at 5:02 of the third quarter. Early in the fourth quarter, he had successive runs of 28 and 25 yards to set up Leybold's third field goal.

Jim Plunkett completed a 64-yard pass to wide receiver Reggie Rucker, then took it in from the five himself for the Patriots' only touchdown at 12:33 of the third quarter. Jeff White kicked 14 and 12-yard field goals.

Bakken scored 20 points in the contest to give him a career total of 1,002. His first field goal was a 35-yarder in the second period that cut Atlanta's margin to 10-3 and he added the tying conversion after Jim Otis clinched a 62-yard St. Louis march with a one-yard plunge with 6:15 left in the half for the Cardinals' only touchdown.

Bakken, who holds the NFL record of seven field goals against Pittsburgh in 1967, connected on kicks of 46, 35, and 31 yards in the third period to build the Cardinals a 19-10 lead and added 37 and 28-yard field goals in the final quarter.

Bakken had another attempt of 32 yards with 4:59 left in the ball game but Atlanta tackle Mike Tilleran broke through to block that one.

The victory was only the fourth this season for the Cardinals who have eight losses and a tie and Atlanta.

Atlanta converted a fumble and a pass interception into a field goal and a touchdown. But with rookie Gary Keithley at the controls, St. Louis completely dominated play the rest of the way, holding the Falcons to a net of only 19 yards in the first half while forging back to a 10-10 tie. St. Louis continued its domination in the second half when Bakken kicked five of his field goals and had another blocked.

Cards virtually push out Falcons

ATLANTA (UPI) — Veteran Jim Bakken kicked six field goals Sunday to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 32-10 upset over Atlanta, virtually knocking the Falcons out of a wild-card berth for the NFC playoffs.

The Cardinals, playing without injured quarterback Jim Hart, were behind 10-0 midway through the first period when Atlanta converted a fumble and a pass interception into a field goal and a touchdown.

But with rookie Gary Keithley at the controls, St. Louis completely dominated play the rest of the way, holding the Falcons to a net of only 19 yards in the first half while forging back to a 10-10 tie. Bengals take giant step close to playoff in win

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ken Anderson threw three first-half touchdown passes to rookie Isaac Curtis—one a 70-yard bomb—as the Cincinnati Bengals took an important step toward the playoffs by whipping arch-rival Cleveland 34-17 Sunday.

Cincinnati, winning its fifth in a row and wrapping up a perfect 7-0 home slate, upped its record to 9-4 and needs only to defeat Houston next week to win the American Conference Central Division title and move into the playoffs against the Miami Dolphins.

The loss dropped Cleveland to 7-4-2, and coupled with Pittsburgh's victory over Houston Sunday, eliminated the Browns.

Anderson, who completed 11 of 19 passes for 197 yards, connected with wide receiver Curtis on touchdown passes of 70, 20 and 9 yards in the first half as the Bengals jumped to a 21-3 halftime lead. Curtis' three TD catches in the game tied a Bengals' record.

Rookie Boobie Clark scored a touchdown on a one-yard run and Horst Muhlmann kicked field goals of 45 and 10 yards for Cincinnati in the second half.

Lions hand Chicago 40-7 loss

DETROIT (UPI) — Bill Munson passed for two touchdowns and Mel Farr ran for two more Sunday as the Detroit Lions crushed NFC Central Division foe Chicago, 40-7, the 10th loss for the Bears in 13 games.

Munson hit 14 of 27 passes for 162 yards as the Lions leveled their season record at .500, 6-6-1.

Defensive back Lem Barney set up two of the first three Detroit touchdowns with an interception and a long punt return. Barney picked off a Gary Huff pass at the Chicago 32 early in the second quarter and returned it to the Bear 10. Farr punched in from four yards out two plays later.

Bradshaw return a success; Steelers rip Houston, 33-7

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw, making his first start in six weeks, fired two touchdown passes, Roy Gerela kicked four field goals and the defense performed brilliantly Sunday to spur Pittsburgh to a 33-7 victory over Houston, virtually assuring the Steelers a playoff berth.

Snapping a three-game losing streak, Pittsburgh dominated the game throughout. The Steelers took a 17-7 halftime margin, holding possession more than 24 minutes and limiting the Oilers to 24 net yards and one first down.

Houston crossed midfield only twice during the game—never after halftime—and was held to five first downs in the game. The Oilers fumbled the ball away five times and had four passes intercepted.

The victory gave Pittsburgh a 9-4 record. If the Steelers win their final game next Saturday against San Francisco, they are assured at least the wild card berth in the AFC playoffs and would meet the Western Division champion in the first round.

Gerela, the first Steeler to score 100 points in two different seasons, kicked field goals of 49, 31, 20 and 42 yards. His second three-pointer was set up when linebacker Henry Davis recovered a fumble on the Houston 48.

Interceptions by linebacker Andy Russell and Loren Toews paved the way for Gerela's last two field goals. Bradshaw, who suffered a right shoulder separation Oct. 28th against Cincinnati, threw both TD passes in the second period. His 15-yarder to Barry Pearson, climaxing a 79-yard drive in 11

ESSC latest Cheyney win streak victim

CHEYNEY — East Stroudsburg State College suffered the same fate Saturday night as every team which has visited Cheyney State's Cope Hall for the last six years.

The Warriors were Cheyney's 63rd straight Cope Hall victim in basketball by a 71-61 score.

The last time, the Wolves lost at home was on Feb. 1, 1967 in a 63-62 defeat to Mansfield. ESSC has beaten Cheyney three straight years at the Koehler Fieldhouse, but has never won on the Wolves' court.

Despite the loss, ESSC Coach Ken Sisson was pleased with the improvement in his team's offense, which had managed only an average of 52 points the last three games.

The Warriors will be back in action at home tonight in an 8 p.m. contest against Fairleigh Dickinson of Madison.

Sophomore Leon White was given a starting assignment and scored 19 points, the game's high, with nine field goals. Len Poole added 15 points and Larry Gravett 12.

Cheyney had three double-figure scorers in All-Pennsylvania Conference forward, 6-9 Vince Ellison with 17, Hammie Byrd with 14 and Leon Bell with 13.

Byrd and Bell spurred an early surge which put the Wolves ahead for keeps at 11-

8. ESSC had taken leads of 2-0 on Gravett's jump shot and 6-4 on a hook shot by Mike Reilly and a steal and layup by White.

Then Cheyney clicked off seven straight points and later in the first half had a six-point rally, again paced by Byrd and Bell, for a 37-25 halftime edge.

The Wolves took their biggest lead at 18 points, 47-29, with four minutes gone in the second half. But ESSC never quit and battled back behind White's seven baskets in 13 shots during the second half, to climb within seven points, 66-59, with seven minutes to go.

Cheyney held on, however, with 6-10 Willie Allen making key points down the stretch to win its third game in four tries. ESSC is now 2-3.

In the Pennsylvania Conference which Cheyney has won the last three years, the Wolves are now 1-1 after an opening loss at Mansfield last Wednesday. The Warriors are 0-2.

ESSC's undefeated junior varsity team scored its third straight victory by beating its Cheyney counterpart, 72-67, with John Shelton high scorer with 23 points.

UCLA win skein waiting for test

By United Press International
The Streak is still alive, waiting to be snapped or stretched in St. Louis in five days.

UCLA's incredible basketball machine gobbled up its 78th straight victory Saturday night when Bill Walton scored 25 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead the Bruins to a 77-60 romp over Southern Methodist. Now second-ranked North Carolina State looms hungrily on the horizon, eager to be the team that ends The Streak on national television Saturday.

"The next one, North Carolina State, is not special to us," said UCLA Coach John Wooden after watching his team coast to victory from a 40-20 halftime lead. "It may be to the other team because of our win streak but we never stress non-conference games."

Even Wooden's own players find that hard to swallow.

"Next week's game is a big one," said senior forward Keith Wilkes, who added 12 points to the Bruin attack on SMU. "North Carolina State is a good team and we'll have to be ready for them."

The Bruins, who squeaked by Maryland 65-64 last week, had no trouble manhandling SMU. Walton, twice player-of-the-year, had 18 points and 14 rebounds in the first half and led UCLA on a 16-0 lead to break the game open during a six-minute stretch just before halftime.

"We tried hard but UCLA is a great team and does so many things well," said Mustang Coach Bob Prewitt. "To beat UCLA, a team will have to nullify some of Walton's moves. It will take a big, mobile strong post man to be in contention against UCLA."

Prewitt knows exactly where he'll be Saturday when The Streak gets its big test of the year.

"You can be sure I will be in front of a television set watching the UCLA-North Carolina State game," Prewitt said.

North Carolina State, which was 27-0 last year but ineligible for post-season competition, was idle Saturday.

In tournament action Saturday night, Oklahoma won the Creighton Classic, beating the host school 73-70; West Virginia edged Oregon State 78-74 to win its own Mountaineer Classic; Missouri downed Texas-El Paso 68-56 to win the Show Me Classic; Pittsburgh ripped Florida State 82-60 to win the Steel Bowl; and Vanderbilt nipped Tennessee State 67-68 to win the Vanderbilt Invitational.

Among the nationally ranked teams, third-ranked Indiana dumped 11th-ranked Kentucky 77-68, sixth-ranked Louisville whipped Butler 91-81, seventh-ranked Marquette clubbed Iowa 86-70, eighth-ranked Notre Dame walloped St. Louis 94-65, 13th-ranked Houston drubbed Florida 91-73, 14th-ranked Kansas State saw its 24-game homecourt winning streak broken.

ESSC girl swimmers lose

EAST STROUDSBURG — Ace swimmer Mary Pakenas started her senior season at East Stroudsburg State College off successfully, but the Warrior dropped an 83-39 swimming decision to Princeton Saturday.

Miss Pakenas won her specialty, the 50-yard breaststroke. The only other ESSC winner was Jennie Barnett, who took the 50-yard backstroke.

Louisiana Tech gains berth in Division Two grid final

By United Press International

The Bulldog determination of quarterback Denny Duron has carried Louisiana Tech into the Camelia Bowl that will decide the NCAA Division 2 championship.

Duron had very little time to overcome a three-point deficit after Coach Maxie Lambright decided he would not play for a tie and made the most of his effort as he hit Roger Carr with a 21-yard touchdown pass with 12 seconds remaining.

The score gave the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs a 38-34 victory and a spot opposite Western Kentucky in this Saturday's Camelia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif., to decide the first NCAA Division 2 championship.

Nastase boost key for crown

BOSTON (UPI) — Ilie Nastase of Romania won the Masters tennis title for the third straight year Saturday but he needed a hefty shove to achieve his hat trick of victories.

In the final, Nastase beat Dutchman Tom Okker, 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, in a match which failed to reach the heights because of the unforced errors committed by both players.

But Nastase could so easily have been back in Bucharest instead of contesting the final. Had Tom Gorman beaten Wimbledon champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia on Thursday in the round-robin series, then Nastase would have been eliminated on a mathematical calculation.

Kodes, who never previously had beaten Gorman, reminded Nastase, 27, of this Saturday and asked his East European neighbor, "what do I get for a Christmas present?"

Nastase, as quick as ever, called back, "I have to pay $4,500 tax on my $15,000 winnings. You can have that."

Then there was the case of John Newcombe, the reigning U.S. and Australian Open champion, who was forced to retire Friday when he held match point against Okker. He pulled a ligament behind the right knee and will be sidelined for at least three weeks.

It was the second straight year injury had forced out Nastase's real final opponent. Last year Gorman quit at a similar stage in Barcelona against Stan Smith because of a back injury.

Newcombe, who lost to Nastase in the round-robin series when he relaxed after winning enough games to be certain of a semifinal berth, could have proved a far different opponent than Okker

Unbeaten Western Kentucky also was handpressed as it defeated Grambling, 28-20, in the Grantland Rice Bowl.

In other Saturday post-season action, Florida A&M beat South Carolina State, 23-12, in the Orange Blossom Classic; Abilene Christian routed Elon (N.C.), 42-14, in the 18th annual NAIA Championship Bowl; Stephen F. Austin downed Gardner Webb, 31-10, in the first Poultry Bowl; and Wittenberg scored a 43-0 decision over Juniata College in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl for the NCAA Division 3 title.

Duron earlier found Carr with a 59-yard touchdown pass and gave Tech another score on a one-yard keeper. Boise quarterback Jim McMillan threw two TD passes and scored twice on runs of seven and eight yards.

Quarterback Dennis Tomek passed for 235 yards and hurled two scoring passes as second-ranked Western Kentucky raised its record to 11-0 for 1973. The Hilltopper defense played a key role as it recovered four Grambling fumbles and intercepted five Tiger passes. One of the Grambling touchdowns came on an 87-yard interception return by linebacker Robert Penneywell.

Ralph Kyles' 10-yard touchdown run over the slick Orange Bowl turf with 2:55 left in the game clinched the Orange Blossom Classic for Florida A&M. Rattlers quarterback Kenny Holt, named MVP, scored on runs of three and two yards.

Clint Longley threw four touchdown passes as Abilene Christian handed Elon its first defeat of the season. Freshman Wilbert Montgomery caught a six-yard TD toss, scored on a one-yard run and set up three other Abilene Christian touchdowns on runs.

Austin's quarterback Larry Mayer was named the Poultry Bowl's MVP after he ran for one score and set up two others. His 61-yard touchdown gallop in the second period helped demoralize Gardner Webb.

Lloyd Ball scored four times on quarterback sneaks and the Wittenberg defense held Juniata to 89 yards on the ground. The Ohio school completed the season with a perfect 12-0 record.

Ordeal continues for loved ones of MIA servicemen

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Barbara Fieszel begins each day with an empty feeling, a feeling she has had since the last American prisoner of war came home from North Vietnam.

Each day she sets out to remind the public that Air Force Maj. Clifford Fieszel has not returned, nor have 1,300 others officially listed as missing in action. Barbara Fieszel is an MIA wife. She last heard of her husband one week after he was shot down over North Vietnam on Sept. 30, 1968, when a North Vietnamese newspaper confirmed a Radio Hanoi report of his capture.

Since then, nothing. Her efforts to keep public interest in the MIAs alive has not been easy. A display booth she and others built at a Tulsa shopping center was torn apart. While she was repairing the booth, someone stole her purse. The purse contained little of value, except a letter from the Air Force, identifying her as an MIA wife, which she is supposed to carry with her at all times.

Mrs. Fieszel has been described by her colleagues as "just plain cheerful," but the recent events left her depressed and, at one point, crying.

"I don't even know how to describe how upset I was after all that. I was beginning to feel maybe we shouldn't even have tried to have the booth out there. It seems like everything we've tried to do the past few weeks has had something go wrong with it."

"It gets very discouraging when you feel you're not getting any support for something like this."

At the recent Tulsa State Fair, the MIA group handed out petitions to be sent to the nation's elected officials demonstrating support for the MIA cause.

The response disappointed and upset the women. "Many people who came by told us they thought it was all over, all the MIAs had been accounted for." She said the MIA families seemed uniformly against the process of "presumptive death" used in the cases of 398 men who were never accounted for in Korea. They want "positive proof."

When her husband, then a captain, was shot down he had been in Indochina only two months and was on his 25th combat mission. He left behind an 11-year-old daughter and a 7-year-old son. "They remember him quite vividly. We've tried very hard to keep hope alive in our family and in our children. It's been very hard. The older they get the more they understand what the chances are. But I think that is the only way you can live in a situation like this—with hope."

Christmas trees big business in USA

RICE, Minn. (UPI) — For most Americans the yearly ritual of selecting the family Christmas tree is a matter of searching lots to find the tree with just the right number of branches in just the right spots.

For Clarence Golden of Rice, Christmas trees are big business and one he almost abandoned after stumbling into it in the first place 15 years ago.

Golden bought his farms, about 60 miles northwest of the Twin Cities, in 1958 and he planted some evergreens — mostly Norway Scotch pines — as windbreaks.

Around Christmastime some of the area residents came to Golden and asked him to sell some of his trees. There were so many requests that Golden thought it might be a good business to go into on a large scale.

Initial response to his Scotch pines from Christmas tree retailers was discouraging and Golden almost decided to forget the whole thing. Then one day he came home from making a delivery in New Ulm, Minn., and there was a huge stack of letters, all requesting his trees.

Today Golden has 400 acres of trees and does a holiday season business of about 24,000 trees. They're shipped to Utah, Arizona, the Dakotas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska. Some are sold in Minnesota.

Golden's "windbreak" has turned into a highly specialized business. He and his two sons have formed a corporation which works nine months of the year to plant, care for, cut and package the trees going out to distributors. Retail business is also booming at the tree farm itself, bringing some purchasers from the Twin Cities and other areas. Every spring 50,000 to 60,000 seedlings are planted. During the summer an eight-man crew works with the trees. Fields which have been cleared of all trees are left through the summer so the grass can be killed before they are replanted.

It takes at least eight years for the seedlings to grow into a tree large enough to sell.

In August, the trees which are marked for sale are sprayed with a fresh, green color that won't come off until the three has been discarded. This keeps the trees looking fresh until well after Christmas, Golden said.

During October most of the Scotch pine are cut and in late November the spruce are cut. The trees are cut at those times so the sap is still in the tree. Golden said all he needed when he went into the business in 1958 was a saw. Now he has special machinery used to shape and form the trees while they are growing, machines to cut the trees, move them, bale them for shipment and even one very special machine.

The trees' No.1 enemy in Minnesota, which has been nicknamed the Gopher State, is the pesky gopher. To deal with him, Golden has a machine which makes tunnels between the trees and every so often drops some poison seed into the hole. The gophers eat the seed and die instead of eating the tree roots and killing them.

Love problem

By Jean Adams

TWO BOYS: (Q). I think I love Ted. He is in Oregon now but will be home in January. While he is gone I have been dating Paul.

Paul is getting pretty hung up on me and says he doesn't care about me loving somebody else.

When Ted gets back I plan to go back with him and forget Paul.

Should I keep dating Paul or just stick it out by myself until Ted comes home?

like me at once and I don't know what to do about it.

What SHOULD I do?

Chased in Kansas

(A). Many boys who write me would love to trade places with you, I am sure.

Learn to make a decision and a choice. I do not mean you have to choose one girl. It could be two or three if you handle it right.

But one at a time.

Waiting in Washington, D.C.

(A). If Paul knows all the facts and still enjoys dating you, and if you still enjoy dating him, go ahead.

Keep this in mind, though. The facts may change. You may get to loving Paul instead of Ted.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Arizona exported $112.9 million worth of agricultural products to foreign countries in fiscal 1972-73, representing 35.5 per cent of the state's total agricultural income.

Cotton represented nearly a third of the record total, followed by citrus and wheat and flour.

Working wives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The working wife has added a second check to family income but disagreement on how it is to be spent can lead to dissension.

So observes W. Scane Bowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Pioneer Western Corp., who said the second income "can actually determine how well a husband and wife get along, matrimonially speaking."

With 46 per cent of the adult female population now contributing to family income, Bowler says, "the husband and wife who both bring home the bacon both should have a say about how it is cooked."

a Watergate prosecutor President Nixon could not fire. Nixon's aides say he will veto the bill if it passes. And the judges have expressed their own opposition to getting that responsibility.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield endorsed the bill this weekend and said he hoped the judges would rename Leon Jaworski, the special prosecutor appointed by Nixon after Archibald Cox was fired Oct. 20.

"I think he's been doing a first rate job," Mansfield said of Jaworski, a conservative

Democrat from Texas. "He's been able to go beyond the mandate that Cox had."

Mansfield said he wanted Jaworski reappointed by the U.S. District Court judges—of whom John J. Sirica is chief judge.

Republicans in both chambers will seek to push through, with conservative Democratic support, bills under which the special prosecutor would be named by the attorney general but subject to Senate confirmation. They say indictments obtained by a court-appointed prosecutor might some day be ruled unconstitutional.

In naming Jaworski, Nixon gave assurances he would not fire him without the approval of a consensus of eight congressional leaders—the top two Republican and Democratic leaders of both houses and the Democratic chairmen and ranking Republican members of both judiciary committees.

Under the independent prosecutor bill before the House, the prosecutor could be removed only by the court and only for "gross dereliction of duty, gross impropriety or physical or mental inability."

In the aftermath of the firing of Cox, nearly 140 House members and more than 50 senators sponsored the bills for court appointment of a prosecutor.

Watergate aside, the energy crisis, and legislative efforts to cope with it, dominate Congress' agenda.

—The House takes up its version of the national emergency energy act sought by Nixon last month. A version has already passed the Senate.

—Spurred by the efficiency of rail transportation, the Senate takes up a bill Tuesday to merge the best lines of seven bankrupt Northeastern and Midwestern railroads into one giant railroad.

Nixon to holiday in Fla.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House: President and Mrs. Nixon are expected to spend the Christmas holidays at their Florida home in Key Biscayne. They had hoped to travel to San Clemente, Calif., but the fuel crisis was expected to keep them closer to home during the Yule season.

Aides said that the First Family had decided that a Florida sojourn at Christmas would cause less criticism than the long haul to California which would entail more jet fuel for White House aircraft.

Nixon also is likely to forego one of his favorite pastimes in Florida and California — barreling down the freeways with his close friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo at the wheel.

White House aides have made it clear that Nixon does not expect to become a stay-at-home because of the energy crisis, but that he will be making the same kind of sacrifices he has asked his fellow Americans to make.

The White House has lowered the thermostats and the lights too. So much so that some of the congressmen who attended a dinner party hosted by Nixon last Tuesday complained that the mansion was dimly lit and on the chilly side.

Rep. James Haley, D-Fla., said he even missed a step going up the stairs in the dimly lit White House.

First Lady Pat Nixon also is invoking austerity measures, making sure that the flues are closed in the fireplaces when they are not in use.

But she remains optimistic that "everything will be shining again" — the lights will go on again at the White House and at the darkened Washington Monument when oil begins to flow again from the Middle East and the United States meets the shortages with other resources.

Nixon is becoming less tolerant of news agency coverage when he goes to his mountaintop retreat. Reporters have found they are not being alerted in time to get to Camp David for Nixon's arrivals or departures.

A three-sided "duck blind" equipped with telephones from which they watched Nixon's helicopters set down and take off for the past five years has been torn down, and reporters now are forced to watch his arrivals and departures from a greater distance.

Reporters used to be allowed to observe the President from the portico outside the Oval Office as he departed from the south lawn of the White House. Now they are required to remain indoors in the Cabinet Room and to watch his takeoffs through the glass windows.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren apparently mis-spoke when he said that Nixon would not be using the Presidential yacht Sequoia in the foreseeable future.

He told reporters at a briefing that the yacht was undergoing maintenance at the Washington Navy Yard and under questioning said that the energy shortage was perhaps one of the reasons the President would no longer be using it, not to mention the winter cold.

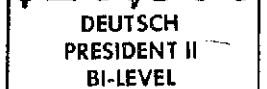

But a few hours later, his statement was amended and it was recorded that the Sequoia would be back in use next spring.

The White House also noted that the Sequoia burns diesel fuel at a maximum rate of six gallons per hour.
